

A black and white photograph of a grand, classical building. In the foreground, several large, fluted columns support a balcony with a decorative railing. The building's facade is made of light-colored stone or marble. In the background, a large, ornate dome with a spire is visible, partially obscured by trees on the left. The sky is overcast.

The implementation of the Client Management Information System (CMIS) in July of 2003 greatly enhances the capacity of the Court Support Services Division (CSSD) to gather and analyze data on clients. In the year and a half since CMIS has been in use, CSSD has been steadily developing new reports using this enhanced capacity. A fundamental change in the data from previous biennial reports with the data in the current report is the shift from cases as the basic reporting unit to clients. Therefore, it should be noted that since a client can have more than one case, the numbers reported in this biennial report may look substantially smaller than in previous reports. In essence, this report will serve as a new baseline for data in future versions of the biennial report.
