I am not in favor of the proposed Bail Rules Change, for several reasons but the glaring one that sticks out is the absolute lack of care for the victims. From identity theft to assault and every thing in between.

First and foremost when surety agents post bail friends and family co cosign for that defendant. Data shows when loved ones and friends are involved the individual is far less likely to commit additional crimes or to fail to appear. When the defendant fails to appear on cash bail posted with the state who goes and locates that defendant the answer is no one. There is no accountability to the process of appearance the victims lose faith in the system. Bail agents work relentlessly to gain apprehension of defendant and secure appearance.
