Bonilla v. Commissioner of Correction (Memorandum Decision) . . . . .	901
Boria v. Commissioner of Correction. . . . .	332
Habeas corpus; whether habeas court improperly dismissed claim that amendments to risk reduction earned credits statute (§ 18-98e) violated ex post facto clause of federal constitution; claim that petitioner's guilty plea in underlying criminal case was not knowingly and voluntarily made; whether habeas court properly dismissed third habeas petition without hearing on ground that it lacked jurisdiction; whether habeas court properly dismissed challenge to voluntariness of guilty plea as improper successive claim pursuant to applicable rule of practice (§ 23-29); claim that petitioner's loss of risk reduction earned credits was cognizable liberty interest; whether claim in third habeas petition that guilty plea was involuntary was precluded by collateral estoppel; whether claim was fully and fairly litigated and decided adversely to petitioner.
Bozelko v. D'Amato . . . . .	278
Legal malpractice; summary judgment; whether trial court properly rendered summary judgment in favor of defendants; whether plaintiff's failure to disclose expert witness to testify that her alleged injury was caused by defendant attorney's allegedly grossly negligent representation of her at sentencing hearing was fatal to legal malpractice claim; whether plaintiff failed to show that defendant attorney's alleged negligence caused plaintiff to be unprepared for sentencing hearing; whether plaintiff failed to demonstrate required components of causation for legal malpractice claim; whether there was unbroken sequence of events that tied plaintiff's injuries to defendant attorney's conduct; whether causal link between alleged negligence and plaintiff's alleged injuries was so obvious as to negate need for expert testimony on that issue.
Bruno v. Whipple . . . . .	299
Contracts; hearing in damages; claim that trial court improperly concluded that plaintiff failed to prove actual damages; claim that trial court exceeded scope of remand order; whether trial court's finding that plaintiff did not prove that marital estate was reduced by defendant's breach of contract was clearly erroneous; whether trial court properly determined that plaintiff had not met burden in demonstrating entitlement to claimed damages; whether plaintiff's claims were based on conjecture and speculation; whether failure of trial court to award nominal damages and to render judgment in favor of plaintiff on breach of contract count constituted reversible error; whether general rule that appellate court will not reverse judgment of trial court for mere failure to award nominal damages applied.
Cannatelli v. Statewide Grievance Committee . . . . .	135
Attorney presentment; appeal to trial court from decision of reviewing committee of defendant Statewide Grievance Committee directing disciplinary counsel to file presentment against plaintiff for violation of certain Rules of Professional Conduct; whether trial court properly granted motion to dismiss and determined that it lacked subject matter jurisdiction over appeal; whether order of presentment is interlocutory in nature or final judgment from which appeal to Superior Court may be filed; whether trial court had jurisdiction because order of presentment was challenged on constitutional grounds.
Citibank, N.A. v. Stein . . . . .	224
Foreclosure; claim that trial court improperly denied motion to dismiss and found that plaintiff had standing to bring foreclosure action; credibility of witnesses; whether assignee may continue litigation in name of original plaintiff; whether trial court abused its discretion by opening record to take additional evidence to address defendant's jurisdictional claims; reviewability of claims of error that have been induced by party claiming error on appeal; reviewability of claim that trial court abused its discretion by failing to consider certain documents; failure to brief claim adequately; claim that foreclosure action was deficient and false

	because mortgagor did not default on note; claim that plaintiff failed to meet burden to prove right to bring present action as nonholder in possession of note; whether trial court properly determined that plaintiff met requirements to prosecute foreclosure action.
Davis v. Commissioner of Correction. . . . .		366
	Habeas corpus; whether habeas court abused its discretion in denying petition for certification to appeal from judgment denying habeas petition; whether habeas court properly determined that trial counsel rendered effective assistance; claim that trial counsel rendered ineffective assistance by failing to move to preclude firearm related evidence; claim that trial counsel was ineffective in failing to consult with and to present testimony of eyewitness identification expert; claim that trial counsel was deficient in failing to object to testimony of laboratory supervisor on ground that testimony violated petitioner's right to confrontation under federal constitution; claim that trial counsel was ineffective by failing to prepare petitioner for presentence investigation interview.
Day v. Seblatnigg . . . . .		482
	Declaratory judgment; motion for summary judgment; conservatorship; claim that trial court erred in finding that no genuine issue of material fact existed as to whether individual was under voluntary conservatorship at time she executed instrument creating irrevocable trust; whether plaintiff coconservator of estate of voluntarily conserved person had standing to bring declaratory judgment action pursuant to statute (§ 45a-655); whether conservator of estate had power to initiate action on behalf of conserved person under § 45a-655; whether putative trustee was necessary party to declaratory action where court declared irrevocable trust was void ab initio; claim that absence of putative trustee implicated subject matter jurisdiction; whether joinder of putative trustee was mandated by statute; whether failure of plaintiff or court to join putative trustee infringed on its due process rights; whether irrevocable trust was void ab initio; claim that 2007 revision to the conservatorship statutes suggested that voluntarily conserved person retained control over estate; whether statutory amendment altered conservator's power and duties; claim that trial court erred when it concluded that conserved person lacked ability to execute trust while under voluntary conservatorship.
DE Auto Transport, Inc. v. Eurolite, LLC. . . . .		270
	Wrongful repossession; conversion; statutory theft; claim that trial court, having assumed liability, erred in failing to award damages; whether credible evidence was presented in support of claim for lost profits; whether trial court had sufficient basis for estimating damages amount with reasonable certainty; whether trial court's determination that testimony and financial report were not credible was clearly erroneous; whether there was credible evidence presented by which trial court could estimate damages with reasonable certainty.
Finney v. Finney (Memorandum Decision). . . . .		902
Fiondella v. Meriden . . . . .		552
	Fraud; litigation privilege; injunctive relief; declaratory judgment; civil conspiracy; claim that defendants failed to give notice of declaratory judgment action as required by rule of practice (§ 17-56 [b]); claim that defendants conspired and schemed to conceal declaratory judgment action from plaintiffs; whether trial court improperly granted motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction on ground that defendants were shielded by litigation privilege; whether litigation privilege shielded defendants where allegations arose out of intentional conduct of defendants in depriving plaintiffs of notice of declaratory action and concealing that action, and were not based on statements made by defendants in course of prior litigation.
Forgione v. Forgione . . . . .		525
	Dissolution of marriage; claim that trial court erred in its method of dividing parties' assets because it failed to take into account advance payment made by plaintiff to defendant against defendant's equitable distribution and resultant transfer of equity in marital residence; whether defendant adequately preserved claim of error; whether trial court lacked subject matter jurisdiction, pursuant to statute (§ 46b-86 [a]), to open dissolution judgment as to financial issues.
Gabriel v. Mount Vernon Fire Ins. Co. . . . .		163
	Insurance; subrogation; action seeking to subrogate plaintiffs to insured's rights under umbrella automobile insurance policy with defendant insurer; whether trial court erred in finding that business insurance policy qualified as underlying insurance, thereby triggering excess coverage; claim that umbrella automobile

	insurance policy's savings clause, which provided that defendant was not required to provide coverage if insured failed to maintain underlying insurance, was inapplicable because it only contemplated situations in which insured has underlying insurance at requisite level when umbrella policy becomes active and fails to keep up underlying policy; whether trial court properly determined that umbrella automobile insurance policy's business exclusion did not apply because qualifying underlying insurance existed at time of accident; claim that trial court erred in determining damages; claim that trial court improperly denied defendant $200,000 credit to be charged against sum that defendant owed toward unsatisfied portion of plaintiffs' underlying judgments.
Gaughan v. Higgins . . . . .		618
	Quiet title; trespass; whether trial court properly credited testimony of plaintiffs' expert witness; whether trial court's factual findings were clearly erroneous; claim that trial court erred in finding that defendant trespassed on plaintiffs' property; claim that trial court improperly awarded plaintiffs fees of expert witness as element of bill of costs; claim that trial court improperly denied request for common-law punitive damages and attorney's fees; claim that trial court improperly concluded that defendant did not slander plaintiffs' title.
In re Lilyana L. . . . .		96
	Termination of parental rights; whether trial court properly terminated respondent mother's parental rights pursuant to statute (§ 17a-112 [j] [3] [F]) on ground that she committed assault of minor child through deliberate, nonaccidental act that resulted in serious bodily injury to child; claim that evidence was insufficient for court to have found that mother committed deliberate, nonaccidental assault that resulted in injury to minor child.
Jenkins v. Jenkins . . . . .		641
	Dissolution of marriage; arbitration; whether trial court improperly denied motion to vacate arbitration award issued in connection with dissolution of marriage; claim that arbitrator improperly precluded testimony of psychiatrist in violation of statute (§ 52-418 [a] [3]); claim that arbitrator was not impartial in violation of § 52-418 (a) (2); whether trial court properly concluded that plaintiff failed to meet burden that she was deprived of full and fair hearing; whether in absence of recordings of arbitration proceedings, trial court properly considered length of proceedings and rulings to determine that plaintiff had full and fair opportunity to present case; whether trial court properly concluded that plaintiff failed to meet burden of demonstrating that arbitrator was partial.
JPMorgan Chase Bank, National Assn. v. Speer (Memorandum Decision) . . . . .		903
Jolen, Inc. v. Brodie & Stone, PLC . . . . .		516
	Breach of fiduciary duty; motion for summary judgment; claim that in view of trial court's unchallenged determination that agency relationship existed between parties, trial court's subsequent failure to conclude that such relationship was per se fiduciary in nature was incorrect as matter of law; whether trial court's determination that defendant was not plaintiffs' fiduciary with respect to matters within scope of its agency was erroneous; whether trial court erred in rendering summary judgment; whether agent is, by definition, fiduciary.
Krahel v. Czoch . . . . .		22
	Dissolution of marriage; whether trial court properly entered order of sanctions for defendant's violation of discovery order; whether defendant violated discovery order; claim that remedy of preclusion was disproportionate to harm; whether trial court's preclusion adversely affected result of trial; claim that alternative sanction of precluding documents rather than precluding testimony would have been appropriate response to defendant's failure to produce requested documents; whether trial court erred to extent that it failed to reserve final judgment until there was resolution of distribution of remaining items of personal property; whether trial court's mediation order was modification of existing judgment for which it lacked authority; whether trial court abused its discretion in awarding defendant chose in action; claim that trial court erred in awarding defendant uncollectable debt; whether trial court abused its discretion in entering financial order requiring defendant to pay debt to his father-in-law.
Konover v. Kolakowski . . . . .		706
	Contracts; indemnification; attorney's fees; breach of fiduciary duty; whether trial court properly rendered summary judgment in defendants' favor; whether trial court properly determined that language of agreement clearly and unambiguously did not obligate defendants to reimburse named plaintiff for certain legal fees incurred during existing litigation; claim that even if agreement was clear and

unambiguous, this court should look beyond four corners of agreement to consider meaning that parties ascribed to indemnification provisions of agreement by their course of conduct; whether, where contract language is clear and unambiguous, intent of parties is question of law, subject to plenary review, contract is to be given effect according to its terms and courts must look only to four corners of contract to discern parties' intent; whether intent of parties in utilizing language in question was not binding on court's legal determination of import of contract language; claim that there are circumstances in which extrinsic evidence may be referenced to glean intent of parties in their utilization of plain language; claim that this court should stray from well reasoned jurisprudence that plain language should be accorded its plain meaning.
LeSueur v. LeSueur . . . . .		431
Dissolution of marriage; claim that trial court improperly granted motion to modify child support; whether there was legally proper evidentiary basis before trial court to support determination of plaintiff's gross or net weekly income at time it considered motions for modification; whether trial court may include income from alimony when it calculates income of alimony recipient for purposes of determining child support; claim that error was harmless and had de minimis impact on trial court's order that plaintiff pay weekly child support; whether error was harmful; claim that trial court abused its discretion by terminating defendant's child support obligation retroactively; whether trial court lacked sufficient information to calculate parties' financial circumstances; whether there was evidence in record indicating that plaintiff's financial circumstances had changed; whether plaintiff demonstrated that she required child support in order to provide for necessary expenses of parties' son; claim that trial court misconstrued parties' separation agreement; whether trial court properly determined that provision of agreement regarding cap and tuition limit of four year college degree from Connecticut state university system did not apply because parties and parties' children mutually agreed on postsecondary institutions that children would attend; claim that trial court improperly denied motion to modify unallocated alimony and child support; claim that because trial court determined that reduction in plaintiff's salary constituted substantial change in circumstances, trial court was obligated to consider all statutory (§ 46b-82) factors to order alimony in accordance with needs and financial resources of parties; whether trial court needed to make explicit reference to statutory criteria that it considered in making its decision.
McQueeney v. Penny (Memorandum Decision) . . . . .		902
Moore v. Commissioner of Correction . . . . .		254
Habeas corpus; whether habeas court abused its discretion in denying petition for certification to appeal from judgment denying habeas petition; whether petitioner established that trial counsel provided ineffective assistance by failing to inform petitioner of potential total sentence exposure if petitioner succeeded at trial in proving lesser included offense; claim that trial counsel was ineffective in failing to further persuade petitioner to accept plea offers; whether trial counsel provided adequate information for petitioner to make informed decision as to whether to accept state's plea offers.
Nicholson v. Commissioner of Correction . . . . .		398
Habeas corpus; whether habeas court abused its discretion by denying petition for certification to appeal; whether habeas court improperly determined that petitioner's trial counsel did not provide ineffective assistance; claim that trial counsel was ineffective by failing to present testimony of expert witness; claim that habeas court abused its discretion by declining to treat witness as expert; whether trial counsel's decision not to retain expert constituted reasonable tactical decision; whether applicable provision (§ 7-2) of Connecticut Code of Evidence required explicit offer and acceptance of witness as expert in order for witness to be treated as expert witness; whether petitioner demonstrated error was harmful; claim that habeas court abused its discretion by failing to review certain evidence admitted at habeas trial.
Norwich v. Loskoutova (Memorandum Decision) . . . . .		904
Owens v. Commissioner of Correction (Memorandum Decision) . . . . .		903
Perez v. Metropolitan District Commission . . . . .		466
Wrongful death; summary judgment; governmental immunity pursuant to statute (§ 52-557n); claim that trial court improperly concluded that plaintiff failed to establish that genuine issue of material fact existed as to whether death of plaintiff's decedent was caused by defendant's breach of ministerial duty; whether

certain deposition testimony raised question of fact as to defendant's ministerial duties; claim that, on basis of defendant's failure to preserve certain state manual, plaintiff was entitled to adverse inference that defendant violated ministerial duty; whether plaintiff failed to adduce any evidence to support existence of ministerial duty in conjunction with claim for adverse inference; claim that there was genuine issue of material fact as to whether defense of governmental immunity applied because decedent was identifiable person subject to imminent risk of harm; whether decedent was individually identifiable to public official or among class of identifiable victims.

Ravalese v. Lertora . . . . . 722
Defamation; absolute immunity; litigation privilege; whether trial court erred in holding that report of defendant psychologist related to postdissolution proceedings was prepared for purpose of litigation and that defendant's statements therein were protected by absolute immunity.

Reinke v. Sing . . . . . 665
Marital dissolution; postjudgment orders; claim that trial court erred by failing to find that defendant committed fraud when he submitted inaccurate financial affidavits to court at time of original dissolution judgment; claim that once underreporting of income and assets was proven, burden shifted to defendant to prove fair dealing by clear and convincing evidence; whether trial court's conclusion that plaintiff failed to prove fraud was clearly erroneous; claim that trial court abused its discretion in rendering orders with respect to alimony, distribution of certain marital property, and attorney's fees; whether trial court, having found no wrongdoing by defendant and having expressly found that plaintiff did not sustain her burden of proving defendant acted fraudulently, was obligated to penalize defendant by awarding plaintiff greater alimony or asset awards; claim that trial court abused its discretion by failing in its financial orders to promote full and frank disclosure in financial affidavits and by failing to address adequately defendant's omission of substantial income and assets from his financial affidavits.

Rivera v. Commissioner of Correction . . . . . 506
Habeas corpus; subject matter jurisdiction; earned risk reduction credit statute (§ 18-98e); claim that habeas court improperly dismissed habeas petition on ground that it lacked subject matter jurisdiction over petitioner's ex post facto and discrimination claims; whether petitioner had constitutionally protected liberty interest in earning future risk reduction credit; whether there was colorable basis for ex post facto claim; whether petitioner alleged cognizable liberty interest sufficient to implicate subject matter jurisdiction of habeas court over ex post facto claim; reviewability of claim that habeas court's articulation constituted improper and untimely modification of judgment.

Santos v. Commissioner of Correction . . . . . 107
Habeas corpus; whether habeas court improperly denied petition for writ of habeas corpus; claim that trial counsel rendered ineffective assistance by having failed to retain expert witness and to present testimony of certain fact witnesses; adoption of trial court's memorandum of decision as statement of facts and applicable law on issues.

State v. Adams . . . . . 84
Hindering prosecution; claim that trial court improperly denied motion to correct illegal sentence and motion for procedural default; reviewability of unpreserved claim of judicial bias; whether defendant waived double jeopardy challenge to sentence after entering voluntary guilty plea; claim that trial court should have included period of probation as part of calculation of maximum definite sentence pursuant to statute (§ 53a-35a); claim that state had duty to file written response to defendant's motion to correct illegal sentence.

State v. Anderson . . . . . 73
Assault in second degree; reckless endangerment in second degree; claim that there was insufficient evidence to convict defendant of assault in second degree; whether reasonable finder of fact could have concluded beyond reasonable doubt that, in light of defendant's claimed mental disease or defect, defendant acted with requisite recklessness and had capacity to be aware of and to disregard substantial risk of serious physical injury to victim by defendant's flinging of metal cart; claim that there was insufficient evidence to convict defendant of four counts of reckless endangerment in second degree; whether there was sufficient evidence for trial court to find beyond reasonable doubt that certain hospital staff members were at risk of physical injury from duffel bags that defendant threw, their

	contents, or items knocked off the shelf as a result of defendant throwing bags in small room full of people and furniture.
State v. Armadore . . . . .	Murder; unpreserved claim that trial court committed plain error in granting state's motion to join defendant's case and that of another defendant for trial; claim that trial court violated defendant's right to confrontation when it permitted state's firearms examiner to testify about firearms evidence that had been examined by examiner who had died and was unavailable for cross-examination; unpreserved claim that trial court improperly permitted witness to make in-court identification of defendant in absence of showing that witness previously had made nonsuggestive out-of-court identification of defendant, in contravention of Supreme Court's requirement in State v. Dickson (322 Conn. 410) that first time in-court identifications must be prescreened by trial court; whether witness' in-court identification of defendant was harmless beyond reasonable doubt; claim that trial court improperly admitted as prior consistent statement certain testimony about defendant's alleged confession to his girlfriend.	140
State v. Barjon . . . . .	Robbery in first degree; conspiracy to commit robbery in first degree; robbery in second degree; conspiracy to commit robbery in second degree; whether trial court violated defendant's right to conflict free representation by not inquiring into potential conflict prior to defendant's plea canvass; claim that once pretrial discussion of plea being accepted by defendant broke down and case was placed on trial list, trial court should have known of conflict of interest and inquired about it on record; claim that trial court erred in assuming that potential conflict issues had been resolved; claim that fact that defendant was prepared to make statement to his detriment and to benefit of codefendant indicated conflict requiring reversal; reviewability of claim that when pretrial counsel withdrew from representation, subsequent counsel did not have adequate time to interview witnesses and to conduct investigation of case.	320
State v. Brett B. . . . .	Murder; violation of standing criminal protective order; whether prosecutor misstated or exaggerated significance of DNA evidence from plastic bag, checkbook and cell phone charger; whether prosecutor implied to jury that he had knowledge outside record with respect to bloody foot impressions; whether trial court abused its discretion when it admitted testimony about bloodstain on tissue; whether trial court abused its discretion when it denied motion to strike expert's testimony about how blood was transferred to tissue; claim that trial court committed plain error when it permitted certain testimony by expert regarding blood spatter analysis when expert had not previously been disclosed or qualified as an expert in that area.	563
State v. Davis. . . . .	Violation of probation; motion to dismiss; motion for continuance; claim that trial court improperly denied motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction due to allegedly improper transfer of case to Superior Court in Bridgeport; whether claim that Bridgeport Superior Court lacked jurisdiction over probation revocation proceeding was essentially objection to venue rather than to jurisdiction; whether claim of improper venue is procedural in nature; whether trial court abused its discretion in granting public defender's transfer request; claim that trial court violated defendant's constitutional right to be present at critical stage of probation revocation proceeding; whether state demonstrated harmlessness of any claimed error beyond reasonable doubt; claim that trial court improperly denied request for continuance of dispositional phase of probation revocation proceeding until all pending criminal matters were resolved to protect defendant's right of allocution; State v. Blake (289 Conn. 586) discussed.	385
State v. Farrar . . . . .	Motion to correct illegal sentence; claim that trial court improperly denied motion to correct illegal sentence; whether defendant's sentence of seven years incarceration followed by eight years of special parole was prohibited by statute (§ 53a-35a) that requires that defendant be sentenced to definite term of imprisonment; whether applicable statutes (§§ 53a-28 [b] [9] and 54-128 [c]) explicitly authorized defendant to be sentenced to term of imprisonment followed by period of special parole.	220
State v. Greene. . . . .	Manlaughter in first degree; whether trial court improperly denied motion to dismiss; claim that trial court's finding of lack of probable cause on murder charge	534 deprived it of jurisdiction over defendant on charge of manslaughter in first degree in amended information; claim that evidence was insufficient to support finding of probable cause for manslaughter in first degree; claim that evidence presented at probable cause hearing could only establish intent to kill, and not intent to cause serious physical injury required for manslaughter charge; whether trial court properly denied defendant's motions for judgment of acquittal; claim that evidence was insufficient to sustain conviction of manslaughter in first degree; claim that trial court abused its discretion by denying motion for new trial.

State v. Hooks (Memorandum Decision) . . . . . 901

State v. Manuel T. . . . . 51

Sexual assault in first degree; risk of injury to child; sexual assault in second degree; sexual assault in fourth degree; whether trial court properly determined that minor victim's statements made during diagnostic interview fell within medical diagnosis or treatment exception to hearsay rule; whether trial court abused its discretion in admitting video recording of diagnostic interview into evidence; whether trial court abused its discretion by excluding from evidence cell phone screenshots of certain text messages; whether defendant failed to satisfy his burden of authenticating screenshots at issue; whether defendant failed to present sufficient evidence to make prima facie showing that minor victim was author of text messages.

State v. Mark T. . . . . 285

Risk of injury to child; claim that trial court improperly precluded defendant from questioning minor victim's teacher about whether victim had been violent with others at school; whether trial court acted within its discretion to limit defendant's questioning of teacher, which did not relate to subject of state's redirect examination of teacher; whether trial court abused its discretion when it sustained state's objections to testimony about victim's misbehavior at home and how desperate defendant was to obtain treatment for her; claim that trial court's preclusion of defendant's testimony rendered his defense of parental justification toothless.

State v. Marsala . . . . . 1

Criminal trespass in first degree; simple trespass; jury instructions; whether trial court properly declined to instruct jury on infraction of simple trespass as lesser offense included within crime of criminal trespass in the first degree; whether jury could have found that defendant committed simple trespass but not criminal trespass in first degree.

State v. Miller . . . . . 654

Motion to correct illegal sentence; whether trial court improperly denied motion to correct illegal sentence without first providing defendant with meaningful opportunity to be heard; whether trial court was not authorized to dispose summarily of motion to correct pursuant to applicable rule of practice (§ 43-22) or any other relevant legal authorities; whether trial court's failure to provide defendant with hearing was improper because defendant had attempted to raise issue of first impression under our state constitution.

State v. Mota-Royaceli . . . . . 735

Manslaughter in first degree; claim that trial court erred in limiting defense counsel's questioning of prospective jurors regarding finality of verdict; whether defendant was prejudiced by fact that trial court limited defense counsel's questioning; claim that trial court impermissibly coerced jury in giving Chip Smith charge on Friday afternoon.

State v. Ortega (Memorandum Decision). . . . . 901

State v. Spring . . . . . 197

Strangulation in second degree; assault in third degree; whether trial court erred in granting motion to admit defendant's written statement into evidence; request for this court to invoke its supervisory authority to order new trial and require judges of Superior Court to instruct juries in particular manner when faced with statements or confessions obtained during unrecorded custodial interrogations in violation of statute [§ 54-1o]; claim that violation of § 54-1o had constitutional implications; claim that written statement should not have been admitted into evidence pursuant to exception in subsection (h) of § 54-1o; whether trial court properly determined that defendant's written statement was voluntary and reliable under totality of the circumstances; whether state was required to present independent corroborating evidence of contents of written statement that violated § 54-1o; reviewability of claim that trial court abused its discretion in overruling

	objection to alleged misstatement of prosecutor during closing rebuttal argument; failure to brief claim adequately.
State v. Washington . . . . .		176
	Conspiracy to commit home invasion; attempt to commit home invasion; attempt to commit robbery in first degree; conspiracy to commit robbery in first degree; attempt to commit assault in first degree; claim that evidence was insufficient to support conviction of conspiracy to commit home invasion and attempt to commit home invasion; whether jury reasonably could have found that defendant had agreed with coconspirators to engage in conduct constituting home invasion; whether jury was entitled to credit and rely on coconspirator's testimony as basis for conviction, even if it was only evidence offered to establish one or more essential elements of charged offense; whether jury reasonably could have found that defendant intentionally took substantial step in course of conduct planned to culminate in crime of home invasion; unreserved claim that trial court improperly instructed jury on common essential element of conspiracy to commit home invasion and attempt to commit home invasion by substituting term "dwelling" with word "building" in its oral jury instructions; whether defendant failed to demonstrate existence of constitutional violation that deprived him of fair trial pursuant to third prong of test set forth in State v. Golding (231 Conn. 233); whether defendant was entitled to reversal of judgment pursuant to plain error doctrine.
U.S. Bank National Assn. v. Wolf (Memorandum Decision) . . . . .		902
U.S. Equities Corp. v. Ceraldi (Memorandum Decision) . . . . .		903
U.S. Equities Corp. v. Ceraldi . . . . .		610
	Debt collection; postjudgment interest; motion for clarification; claim that trial court's order granting motion for clarification and setting forth 10 percent rate of postjudgment interest pursuant to statute (§ 37-3a), constituted improper substantive modification of judgment; failure of plaintiff to move to open judgment to determine rate of interest within four month postjudgment period as prescribed by applicable statute (§ 52-212a).
