CONNECTICUT APPELLATE REPORTS

Clements v. Aramark Corp., 182 CA 224	26A
Workers' compensation; whether plaintiff's head injury was compensable under Workers Compensation Act (§ 31-275 et seq.); whether plaintiff's head injury arose out of employment; claim that Workers' Compensation Review Board improperly concluded that plaintiff's head injury did not arise out of employment because fall was caused by personal infirmity rather than workplace condition.
Georges v. OB-GYN Services, PC (Memorandum Decision), 182 CA 901.	117A
Lynn v. Bosco, 182 CA 200	2A
Declaratory judgment; action seeking declaratory judgment to determine whether plaintiffs' preemptive rights as shareholders of stock in defendant corporation were violated in connection with sale of certain shares of corporation's stock to individual defendants; whether trial court had authority to order equitable relief that imposed remedy on defendant corporation, which was cited in as defendant for notice purposes only; whether trial court's order was inconsistent with issues as framed in pleadings, which did not include any allegations of wrongdoing against defendant corporation or seek any relief from it; whether defendant corporation had notice that equitable relief would enter against it; whether trial court's order resulted in unfair surprise to defendant corporation.
Perez v. University of Connecticut, 182 CA 278	80A
Negligence; sovereign immunity; claim that trial court improperly granted state's motion to strike matter from jury list in violation of plaintiff's constitutional right to jury trial; whether plaintiff established that he would have been able to bring present action seeking money damages against state prior to 1818; claim that jury trial was permissible in actions against state authorized by General Assembly pursuant to statute (§ 4-159) because state must be treated as private person pursuant to §§ 4-159 (c); whether § 4-159 (c) could be fairly construed to grant to plaintiff rights he would have had if action were brought against private person rather than state, including right to jury trial; whether statute (§ 4-160 [c]) could be read as conferring right to jury trial when § 4-160 (f) expressly provides that actions brought against state pursuant to § 4-159 shall be tried to court, not jury.
State v. Hearl, 182 CA 237	39A
Cruelty to animals; whether evidence was sufficient to support conviction of cruelty to animals; claim that trial court improperly declined to instruct jury on criminal negligence, where general intent is appropriate mens rea for "unjustifiably injures" clause of animal cruelty statute (§ 53-247 [a]); unpreserved claim that § 53-247 (a) is unconstitutionally vague as applied to defendant's conduct because terms "charge" and "custody" in § 53-247 (a) did not provide notice that defendant bore responsibility of caring for goats; unpreserved claim that conviction of nine- teen charges of animal cruelty violated prohibition against double jeopardy; claim that phrase "any animal" in § 53-247 (a) refers to species of animal rather than to individual animal.

 Tedesco v. Agolli, 182 CA 291 93A
Foreclosure; claim that trial court improperly found that defendant member of defendant limited liability company had authority to bind defendant limited liability company to mortgage at issue; adoption of trial court's memorandum of decision as proper statement of facts, issues and applicable law.
