CONNECTICUT REPORTS

A Better Way Wholesale Autos, Inc. v. Rodriguez (Order), 327 C 992 . . . . .	100
Byrne v. Avery Center for Obstetrics & Gynecology, P.C., 327 C 540 . . . . .	60
Negligence; negligent infliction of emotional distress; whether trial court properly granted summary judgment in favor of defendant health care provider; whether cause of action for breach of duty of confidentiality arising out of physician-patient relationship is recognized by common law; whether existence of subpoena precluded liability; recognition of common-law causes of action, discussed.
Cohen v. Cohen, 327 C 485. . . . .	5
Dissolution of marriage; motion to modify alimony based on substantial increase in defendant's income; whether prior modification order was sufficient to fulfill underlying purpose of original alimony award; claim that trial court improperly considered parties' financial circumstances at time of divorce decree when it granted motion to modify prior modification order; claim that court was barred from considering purpose of original alimony award when crafting modification; whether plaintiff's motion for modification was legally insufficient on its face on ground that it alleged only that defendant's income had significantly increased; whether court properly considered extrinsic evidence of parties' intent when they entered into separation agreement; claim that court improperly took judicial notice of plaintiff's previous financial affidavit in court file; claim that trial court's modification order was impermissible; claim that allowing supported spouse to share supporting spouse's standard of living after divorce was not legitimate purpose of original alimony award; whether court was required, under Dan v. Dan (315 Conn. 1), to presume that exclusive purpose of alimony award in present case was to allow plaintiff to maintain standard of living that she had enjoyed during marriage.
Emerick v. Glastonbury (Order), 327 C 994 . . . . .	102
Epps v. Commissioner of Correction, 327 C 482 . . . . .	2
Habeas corpus; certification from Appellate Court; whether, in collateral proceeding, where petitioner claims that trial court improperly omitted element of criminal charge in final instructions to jury, is proper standard for assessing harm measured in accordance with standard in Brecht v. Abrahamson (507 U.S. 619) or standard in Neder v. United States (527 U.S. 1); whether, irrespective of which standard applied, harm had been established in petitioner's criminal case; appeal dismissed on ground that certification improvidently granted.
Friedman v. Dooven (Order), 327 C 993 . . . . .	101
Gostyla v. Chambers (Order), 327 C 993 . . . . .	101
In re Egypt E., 327 C 506. . . . .	26
Termination of parental rights; claim that trial court improperly terminated respondents' parental rights as to their minor child pursuant to statute (§ 17a-112 [j] [3] [C]) because there was no evidence that acts of parental commission or omission had caused child to suffer harm prior to her removal from respondents' home; whether termination of parental rights improperly was based on finding of predictive harm; whether trial court improperly found that criteria of § 17a-112 (j) (3) (C) had been proven on basis of respondents' postremoval acts of parental omission, including their continuing failure to acknowledge cause of injuries to their other child; whether there was sufficient evidence presented to establish that respondents' omissions were harmful to child; claim that expert testimony was insufficient to establish that child had been psychologically harmed.

CONNECTICUT APPELLATE REPORTS

Pettiford v. State, 179 CA 246 . . . . . 28A
Negligence; comparative negligence; claim that plaintiff was entitled to new trial because trial court's comparative negligence calculus rested on its erroneous determination that unmarked crosswalk did not exist in area where plaintiff was struck by defendant's vehicle; construction of statutory (§ 14-297 [2]) definition of crosswalk; whether plaintiff failed to demonstrate how claimed error regarding unmarked crosswalk would have altered court's judgment; whether trial court should have rendered judgment on merits rather than dismissed action.
 State v. Lebrick, 179 CA 221 . . . . . 3A
Felony murder; home invasion; conspiracy to commit home invasion; burglary in first degree; attempt to commit robbery in first degree; assault in first degree; claim that former testimony of witness was inadmissible hearsay because it did not fall within exception to hearsay rule set forth in § 8-6 (1) of Connecticut Code of Evidence; claim that state failed to establish that witness was unavailable; whether state demonstrated that it made good faith effort to locate witness; claim that admission of witness' former testimony violated defendant's rights under confrontation clause of sixth amendment to United States constitution; claim that trial court improperly admitted testimony of firearm and tool mark expert in violation of § 4-1 of Connecticut Code of Evidence because state failed to establish relevancy of his testimony by providing sufficient evidentiary foundation that photographs, report, and notes relied on by expert were associated with crimes at issue in present case; claim that defendant's right to confrontation was implicated by admission of expert's opinion testimony where expert's opinion was formulated in part on basis of his review of ballistic report prepared by former employee of state's forensic laboratory who was not available to testify at trial.
 State v. Montana, 179 CA 261 . . . . . 43A
Sexual assault in first degree; risk of injury to child; whether state presented sufficient evidence to support conviction of sexual assault in first degree and risk of injury to child; credibility of witnesses; whether trial court abused its discretion in excluding third-party culpability evidence proffered by defendant.
