“...[A] party obtaining a judgment for money damages in Connecticut has two means to enforce that judgment; it may seek an execution of the judgment or it may initiate an independent action. See General Statutes § 52-598 (a); see also 30 Am. Jur. 2d 84, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments § 47 (2005) (distinguishing between execution and action on judgment).” Investment Associates v. Summit Associates, Inc., 309 Conn. 840, 74 A.3d 1192 (2013).

"'Judgment creditor' means a person in whose favor a money judgment was rendered, or any person succeeding to such rights.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-350a (10) (2017).

"'Money judgment' means a judgment, order or decree of the court calling in whole or in part for the payment of a sum of money, other than a family support judgment. Money judgment includes any such money judgment of a small claims session of the Superior Court, any foreign money judgment filed with the Superior Court pursuant to the general statutes and in IV-D cases, overdue support in the amount of five hundred dollars or more accruing after the entry of an initial family support judgment.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-350a(13) (2017).

"'Postjudgment procedure' means any procedure commenced after rendition of a money judgment, seeking or otherwise involving a discovery procedure, a placing of a lien on property, a modification or discharge of a lien, a property execution under section 52-356a, a turnover order, an installment payment order, a wage execution, a modification of a wage execution, a compliance order, a protective order or a determination of exemption rights.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-350a(13) (2017).

"Enforcement: "A money judgment may be enforced against any property of the judgment debtor unless the property is exempt from application to the satisfaction of the judgment under section 52-352a, 52-352b, 52-352d or 52-361a or any other provision of the general statutes or federal law. The money judgment may be enforced, by execution or by foreclosure of a real property lien, to the amount of the money judgment with (1) all statutory costs and fees as provided by the general statutes, (2) interest as provided by chapter 673 on the money judgment and on the costs incurred in obtaining the judgment, and (3) any attorney's fees allowed pursuant to section 52-400c.” (Emphasis added.) Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-350f (2017).

“Permitting chapter 906 procedures in certain family support judgments as a way of ensuring compliance with support obligations is consistent with the public policy of this state.” Kupersmith v. Kupersmith, 146 Conn. App. 79, 78 A. 3d 860 (2013).

Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Rule 69: “(a) In General. (1) Money Judgment; Applicable Procedure. A money judgment is enforced by a writ of execution, unless the court directs otherwise. The procedure on execution — and in proceedings supplementary to and in aid of judgment or execution — must accord with the procedure of the state where the court is located, but a federal statute governs to the extent it applies.”
Section 1: Installment Payment Orders

SCOPE:
- Bibliographic resources concerning installment payment orders.

DEFINITIONS:
- "Installment payment order" means the fixing by the court of a sum to be paid periodically by the judgment debtor until satisfaction of a money judgment.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-350a(9) (2017).
- "When a judgment is rendered against a natural person, the judgment creditor or judgment debtor may move the court for an order for installment payments in accordance with a money judgment. After hearing and consideration of the judgment debtor's financial circumstances, the court may order installment payments reasonably calculated to facilitate payment of the judgment.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-356d(a) (2017).
- "In the case of a consumer judgment, the court may provide that compliance with the installment payment order, other than with an order for nominal payments pursuant to subsection (c) of this section, shall stay any property execution or foreclosure pursuant to that judgment, provided such a stay is reasonable considering the nature of the debt and the financial circumstances of the judgment debtor. In the case of a judgment arising out of services provided at a hospital, the court shall provide that compliance with the installment payment order shall stay any property execution or foreclosure pursuant to that judgment, including, but not limited to, execution on wages, execution on bank accounts, and execution on or foreclosure of real property.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-356d(b) (2017).
- "An installment payment order shall not be enforced by contempt proceedings, but on the judgment debtor's default on payments thereon, the judgment creditor may apply for a wage execution pursuant to section 52-361a.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-356d(d) (2017).
- "If a judgment debtor fails to comply with an installment payment order, the judgment creditor may apply to the court for a wage execution. The application shall contain the judgment creditor's or the judgment creditor's attorney's statement setting forth the particulars of the installment payment order and of the judgment debtor's failure to comply.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-361a (2017).

LEGISLATIVE:

CASES:
- Unifund CCR Partners v. Schaeppi, 140 Conn. App. 281, 288, 59 A. 3d 282 (2013). "The statutory language indicates that an installment payment order is an order by the court that may be entered after a money judgment is entered...." "The plaintiff further contends that when the court entered the installment payment order, this action somehow remedied the defect in the underlying judgment. While the entering of an installment payment order without a basis in a valid judgment may have implications with respect to the validity of the subsequent installment payment order, it does not, conversely, validate an invalid judgment. Not only is this logically untenable, there is no legal authority for the proposition that the entering of an installment payment order corrects an underlying defective judgment."
- Ballou v. Law Offices Howard Lee Schiff, PC, 304 Conn. 348, 350, 39 A.3d 1075 (2012). "The dispositive issue in this case, which comes to us upon our acceptance of two certified questions from the United States District Court for the District of Connecticut pursuant to General Statutes § 51-199b (d), is whether General Statutes § 52-356d (e) provides for the automatic accrual of postjudgment interest on all judgments in which an installment payment order has been entered by the court. We answer that question in the negative."
- Discover Bank v. Mayer, 127 Conn. App. 813, 816, 17 A.3d 80 (2011). "It is apparent, therefore, that the interest referred to in § 52-356d (e) is derived from an award of interest pursuant to § 37-3a. This court previously has determined that 'an award of postjudgment interest is authorized by § 37-3a'; Urich v. Fish, supra, 112 Conn. App. 843; and '[a] decision to deny or grant postjudgment interest is primarily an equitable determination and a matter lying within the discretion of the trial court.' (Internal quotation marks omitted.) TDS Painting & Restoration, Inc. v. Copper Beech Farm, Inc., 73 Conn. App. 492, 511, 808 A.2d 726, cert. denied, 262 Conn. 925, 814 A.2d 379 (2002). Contrary to the plaintiff's contention, this exercise of discretion is not, in any way, circumscribed in cases where installment payments have been ordered by the court. The plain language of § 52-356d (e), as well as its relationship with other statutes, makes clear that a judgment creditor may request postjudgment interest to accrue on a money judgment pursuant to § 37-3a, and that such interest, if awarded, shall continue to accrue on the unpaid portion of a money judgment in cases where installment payments have been ordered by the court. Accordingly, because the award of postjudgment interest is discretionary, and the plaintiff does not claim that the court's denial of its request for postjudgment interest constituted an abuse of discretion, we affirm the judgment of the trial court.”

- Lienfactors, LLC v. Crandall, Superior Court, Judicial District of New London at New London, No. CV 07 5002929 (Oct. 2, 2008). “In the present case, Nazzaro, the winning party in the underlying action, Nazzaro v. Crandall, supra, Superior Court, Docket No. CV 06 5001717, chose to secure the judgment by moving the court for an order for ‘reasonable’ installment payments. (Plaintiff's exhibit B.) The plaintiffs claim that the order was for nominal payments is not supported by the plaintiff's own evidence. The ‘motion for order’ form contains two boxes defining the payment request: one box is labeled Nominal, the other is labeled Reasonable. (Plaintiff's Exhibit B.) On the form submitted by Nazzaro in Nazzarro v. Crandall, id., the box labeled Reasonable was marked, the box labeled Nominal was left unmarked. Therefore, Nazzaro, the plaintiff's predecessor in interest, moved the court for an order of reasonable installment payments. It is undisputed that the defendant has been complying with that order by making weekly payments. Therefore, the defendant is not in default on the judgment lien and the judgment cannot be considered unpaid. Moreover, if the plaintiff found the amount of weekly installment payments unreasonable, it should have filed a motion to modify the order pursuant to General Statutes § 52-356d(f) instead of collaterally attacking the court's order…”

- Bergen v. Belfonti, 47 Conn. Sup. 291, 791 A.2d 723 (2000). “Under the plain language of the statute, the two criteria that are to be evaluated are the ‘judgment debtor's financial circumstances' and ‘installment payments reasonably calculated to facilitate payment of the judgment.’”

- Bergen v. Belfonti, 47 Conn. Sup. 291, 791 A.2d 723 (2000). “The defendant's position is that under § 52-356d, the court is limited to utilizing a salary of $52,000 in considering his ‘financial circumstances.’ The court finds, however, that this is not appropriate in view of the credible evidence presented.”

- Shanks v. Shanks, Superior Court, Judicial District of Danbury, No. 32 64 58 (Oct. 23, 1997) (20 Conn.L.Rptr. 530). “Under Connecticut practice, an order for installment payments (weekly payments) must be obtained as a prerequisite to the issuance of a wage execution. If an installment payment order is established and the defendant fails to comply, then the plaintiff may well be entitled to a wage execution in accordance with Sec. 52-361a of the General Statutes.”

- Mahon v. Moorman, Superior Court, Judicial District of Fairfield at Bridgeport, No. CV 95 0329017 (Feb. 28, 1997) (18 Conn.L.Rptr. 643). “The defendant contends that the plaintiff has failed to comply with any of the methods of service permitted under § 52-350e. Thus, the defendant asserts that the court lacked personal jurisdiction over the defendant to enter the installment payment order because the plaintiff failed to comply with the service requirements of § 52-350e. Hence, the defendant argues that the installment payment order should be vacated.”

Section 2: Wage Executions
A Guide to Resources in the Law Library

SCOPE:
• Bibliographic resources concerning wage executions.

TREATED ELSEWHERE:
• Enforcement of Child Support Orders (Research Guide)
• Enforcement of Family Judgments (Research Guide)

DEFINITIONS:
• “Disposable earnings’ means that part of the earnings of an individual remaining after the deduction from those earnings of amounts required to be withheld for payment of federal income and employment taxes, normal retirement contributions, union dues and initiation fees, group life insurance premiums, health insurance premiums, and federal tax levies.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-350a(4) (2017).

• “Earnings’ means any debt accruing by reason of personal services, including any compensation payable by an employer to an employee for such personal services, whether denominated as wages, salary, commission, bonus or otherwise.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-350a(5) (2017).

• “The term ‘earnings’ means compensation paid or payable for personal services, whether denominated as wages, salary, commission, bonus, or otherwise, and includes periodic payments pursuant to a pension or retirement program.” 15 U.S. Code § 1672 (a)

• “An installment payment order shall not be enforced by contempt proceedings, but on the judgment debtor's default on payments thereon, the judgment creditor may apply for a wage execution pursuant to section 52-361a.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-356d(d) (2017).

• “Application. If a judgment debtor fails to comply with an installment payment order, the judgment creditor may apply to the court for a wage execution. The application shall contain the judgment creditor's or the judgment creditor's attorney's statement setting forth the particulars of the installment payment order and of the judgment debtor's failure to comply. The application shall be accompanied by a fee of one hundred five dollars payable to the clerk of the court for the administrative costs of complying with the provisions of this section which fee may be recoverable by the judgment creditor as a taxable cost of the action.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-361a (2017).

• Amount subject to levy. "The maximum part of the aggregate weekly earnings of an individual which may be subject under this section to levy or other withholding for payment of a judgment is the lesser of (1) twenty-five per cent of his disposable earnings for that week, or (2) the amount by which his disposable earnings for that week exceed forty times the higher of (A) the minimum hourly wage prescribed by Section 6(a)(1) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, USC Title 29, Section 206(a)(1), or (B) the full minimum fair wage established by subsection (i) of section 31-58, in effect at the time the earnings are payable. Unless the court provides otherwise pursuant to a motion for modification, the execution and levy shall be for the maximum earnings subject to levy and shall not be limited by the amount of the installment payment order. Only one execution under this section shall be satisfied at one time. Priority of executions under this section shall be determined by the order of their presentation to the employer.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-361a(f) (2017).

- “Notwithstanding any provision of the general statutes to the contrary, no prejudgment remedy shall be available to a person in any action at law or equity (1) unless he has complied with the provisions of sections 52-278a to 52-278g, inclusive, except an action upon a commercial transaction wherein the defendant has executed a waiver as provided in section 52-278f, or (2) for the garnishment of earnings as defined in subdivision (5) of section 52-350a.” (Emphasis added.) Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-278b (2017).

- “Because wages that a judgment debtor has deposited into a bank account do not constitute a debt payable by the employer, they do not come within this definition, and § 52-361a does not apply to them.” (Emphasis added.) Cadle Co. v. Fletcher, 324 Conn. 228, 235 (2016).

TIPS:
- The Connecticut Lawyers’ Deskbook (3rd ed., 2008) is a useful place to start for practical advice on the procedures concerning collecting money judgments. The Deskbook also lists common pitfalls one may encounter in the process.
- The instructions along with the statutes and rules listed on the official postjudgment forms provide useful starting points for research.

STATUTES:
  - § 52-356d. Installment payment order.
  - § 52-361a. Execution on wages after judgment.
    - § 52-361b. Notification of judgment debtor’s rights. Claim for exemption or modification.
    - § 52-367c. Execution against lottery and pari-mutuel winnings.
    - § 52-400a. Protective order by court. Execution against specified property.
    - § 52-400b. Penalty for failure to comply with certain court orders.

COURT RULES:

- Connecticut Practice Book (2018)
  - § 17-52. Executions
  - § 24-30. Satisfying Judgment
  - § 24-32. Execution in Small Claims Actions

LEGISLATIVE:

CASES:

- Cadle Co. v. Fletcher, 324 Conn. 228, 235 (2016). “Finally, we note that case law from other jurisdictions supports our conclusions that § 52-361a is the only statute that specifically exempts earnings from execution, that § 52-367b (a) does not extend this exemption to wages that have been disbursed to the debtor, that no other statute specifically exempts wages from execution, and that this interpretation does not undermine public policy.”

- Community Inv. Corp. v. Sirico Professional Services, Superior Court, Judicial District of New Haven at New Haven, No. NNHCV146051279 (July 16, 2015) (2015 WL 4880282). “The sixth and final statute to which 52–367b refers is 52–361a, the statute that describes the circumstances under which a judgment creditor may attach wages of a judgment debtor. That statute is quite comprehensive in describing the procedure that must be utilized in attaching wages. It provides that the execution paperwork contain certain advisements to the debtor. It provides for certain procedures that must be followed by the levying officer and by the employer of the judgment debtor. Section 52–361a does not, in and of itself, create or contain a blanket exemption from execution on wages, as 52–352b does for other streams of income. But it does provide for a separate means of executing on wages, treating such an execution in an entirely different way from an execution on funds held by a financial execution under 52–367b.”

- Chase Bank v. Arborio, Superior Court, Judicial District of New Britain at New Britain, No. CV 10-6005850 (April 7, 2011). “To be sure, a wage execution is one remedy that a plaintiff may elect. And an installment payment order is a prerequisite to the issuance of a wage execution. See Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52–361a(a). But nowhere in the installment payment statute—Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52–356d—or in the wage execution statute is there support for the proposition that a wage execution is the plaintiff's exclusive remedy.

Indeed elsewhere in the installment payment statute there is language that leads to the opposite conclusion. Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52–356d(b) provides that in the case of a consumer judgment (such as the judgment here, arising out of a credit... card debt), ‘a court may provide that compliance with the installment payment order ... shall stay any property execution or foreclosure pursuant to that judgment ...’ There would be no need to add such language authorizing the court to impose a stay of further kinds of post-judgment collection efforts if the plaintiff were not entitled to use these other post-judgment remedies in the first place.”

- The Cadle Company v. Sydorowycz, Judicial District of Hartford at Hartford, No. CV 00-0597714 (Jun. 5, 2001). “[T]he proper method of obtaining a wage execution is by post-judgment application to the court, not by directly bringing an action against the judgment debtor’s employer. The employer need only be served with the wage execution once issued, not sued, and, as such, is not a necessary party to any application. See General Statutes § 52-361a(d);”

- Shanks v. Shanks, Superior Court, Judicial District of Danbury, No. 32 64 58 (Oct. 23, 1997) (20 Conn.L.Rptr. 530). “Under Connecticut practice, an order for installment payments (weekly payments) must be obtained as a prerequisite to the issuance of a wage execution. If an installment payment order is established and the defendant fails to comply, then the plaintiff may well be entitled to a wage execution in accordance with Sec. 52-361a of the General Statutes.”

- Board of Education v. Booth, 232 Conn. 216, 654 A.2d 717 (1995) “Therefore, the plaintiff's claim that the legislature intended to limit the scope of the term "earnings" to include only wages finds no support in the legislative history of § 52-278b. We conclude, therefore, that the trial court properly denied the plaintiff's application for a prejudgment garnishment.”

- Hartford Postal Employees Cr. Union v. Rosemond, 33 Conn. App. 395, 635 A.2d 876 (1994). “We hold that the trial court cannot vacate a wage execution on a motion to modify. The statutory scheme of postjudgment remedies set forth in chapter 906 of the General Statutes balances the equities between judgment creditors and judgment debtors...Issuing a wage execution...is not discretionary, it is mandatory. General Statutes 52-361a(b). Including the power to vacate within the power to modify would defeat the mandatory nature of 52-361a(b). Therefore, we hold that the power to modify pursuant to 52-361a(h) does not include the power to vacate.”

- General Tires, Inc. v. United Aircraft Corporation, 143 Conn. 191, 120 A.2d 426 (1956) “...the provision of the statute that only one execution against wages is to be satisfied at a time is unequivocal and not subject to modification by interpretation...”

Enforcing Money Judgments

LEGISLATIVE:

CASES:
- Cavalry SPV I, LLC v. Duffield, Superior Court, Judicial District of New Britain at New Britain, No. CV 12-6016167 (August 14, 2017) (2017 WL 4273371) (65 Conn. L. Rptr. 1). “It cannot be the law that exempt property is transformed into nonexempt property by the passage of fifteen days without the owner's filing an exemption claim form. The language of § 52–367b demonstrates that such is not the case.”
- Cadle Co. v. Fletcher, 324 Conn. 228, 243 (2016). “Finally, we note that case law from other jurisdictions supports our conclusions that § 52-361a is the only statute that specifically exempts earnings from execution, that § 52-367b (a) does not extend this exemption to wages that have been disbursed to the debtor, that no other statute specifically exempts wages from execution, and that this interpretation does not undermine public policy.”
- Fields v. Michaud Development, Superior Court, Judicial District of Waterbury at Waterbury, No. CV156027798 (March 8, 2016) (2016 WL 1315107). “The court concludes that the language of § 52–367b presumes a valid debt to which exemptions may be applied. Where an underlying debt does not exist or has been invalidated, as determined by the court in the quiet title action, there should be no levy or execution permitted. Therefore, the court orders the release of all funds to the Fields, executed upon by the City in this matter.”
- Connecticut Light & Power v. Spencer, Superior Court, Judicial District of New Haven at New Haven, No. CV116004029S (Dec. 6 2012) (55 Conn. L. Rptr. 130) (2012 WL 6743584). “[T]he defendant who appeared before this court on December 3, 2012, and represented herself, claims that the monies taken were her social security benefits, which are her sole source of revenue. CL & P does not contest that these were social security funds. CL & P, however, objects on the grounds that the defendant was required by Connecticut General Statutes §§ 52–367b(e) and (h) to file her claim for exemption and have it received by the bank within fifteen (15) days from the date of the mailing of ‘Notice to the Judgment Debtor’ and, because this was not done, the defendant cannot make any further claim for the funds. Essentially, CL & P argues that the fifteen-day periods set forth in the statutes are mandatory and any claimant who fails to follow its strictures is foreclosed from making further claims. This court disagrees.”
- George v. Siriwardene, Superior Court, Judicial District of
The fact situation in this case is not the subject of a wage execution. It is claimed that the money in that account was produced by wages. Under our law, wages put in a checking account or savings account are not exempt from execution.

- Phoenix Windows, Inc. v. Viking Construction, Inc., 88 Conn. App. 74, 79, 868 A.2d 102 (2005). "This, because the [arbitration] award was confirmed and the court added a requirement that the assignment of interest was a prerequisite to the bank execution, its action was a modification of the award, rather than an effectuation of the award. Because the thirty day time limit to modify the award had passed; see § 52-420; and a motion to modify the judgment was never filed, the court improperly granted the motion to terminate the stay and improperly sustained the objection to the bank execution.

- Pac v. Altham, 49 Conn. App. 503, 508, 714 A. 2d 716 (1998). "Here, the trial court improperly created an exemption not otherwise provided by statute. People's Bank v. Perkins, supra, 22 Conn. App. 260. Specifically, the trial court found that the entire account was exempt from execution because of the proceedings related to the service of the first execution, which was untimely and therefore improper. This exemption is not provided for in the General Statutes. To the contrary, General Statutes § 52-352b sets forth the list of statutory exemptions.”

- Fleet Bank Connecticut, N.A. v. Carillo, 240 Conn. 343, 691 A.2d 1068 (1997) "The sole issue on this appeal is whether a judgment creditor may enforce a statutory right to a bank execution, pursuant to General Statutes § 52-367b, against the entire balance of a joint bank account to which both a judgment debtor and his nondebtor spouse have contributed funds . . .

  If each coholder of a joint account has a sufficient property interest in the account to permit a bank creditor to exercise a right of setoff against a mutual debt that encompasses the entire joint account, it follows that each such coholder has a sufficient property interest to permit a judgment creditor to exercise a bank execution, pursuant to § 52-367b, against the entire account. In both cases, a coholder's property interest in the joint account exposes that account, in its entirety, to the creditor's collection powers, in the absence of statutory or common law protections not present here.”

the midnight deadline, as defined in 42a-4-104(a)(10), is the applicable time limitation within which a bank must act upon a 52-367a execution, the trial court appropriately concluded that the bank was required to exercise its competing right to a setoff before the expiration of that deadline.”

A Guide to Resources in the Law Library

SCOPE:
- Bibliographic resources concerning property executions.

DEFINITIONS:
- "Property" means any real or personal property in which the judgment debtor has an interest which he could assign or transfer, including (A) any present or future right or interest, whether or not vested or liquidated, (B) any debt, whether due or to become due, and (C) any cause of action which could be assigned or transferred.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-350a(16) (2017).

- “On application of a judgment creditor or his attorney, stating that a judgment remains unsatisfied and the amount due thereon, and subject to the expiration of any stay of enforcement and expiration of any right of appeal, the clerk of the court in which the money judgment was rendered shall issue an execution pursuant to this section against the nonexempt personal property of the judgment debtor other than debts due from a banking institution or earnings. ...In the case of a consumer judgment, the application shall indicate whether, pursuant to an installment payment order under subsection (b) of section 52-356d, the court has entered a stay of execution and, if such a stay was entered, shall contain a statement of the judgment creditor or his attorney as to the debtor's default on payments. In the case of a judgment arising out of services provided at a hospital, no application shall be made until the court has (A) issued an order for installment payments in accordance with section 52-356d, (B) made a finding that the debtor has defaulted on payments under the order, and (C) lifted the mandatory stay issued under section 52-356d...” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-356a(a)(1) (2017).

- "Where a dispute exists between the judgment debtor or judgment creditor and a third person concerning an interest in personal property sought to be levied on, or where a third person claims that the execution will prejudice his superior interest therein, the judgment creditor or third person may, within twenty days of service of the execution or upon application by the judgment creditor for a turnover order, make a claim for determination of interests pursuant to this section.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-356c(a) (2017).

- “A property execution pursuant to section 52-356a to be levied on property of a judgment debtor who is a natural person shall be accompanied by a conspicuous notice in clear and simple language of judgment debtor rights, on a prescribed exemption claim form containing (1) a checklist and description of the most common classes of personal property which are exempt from execution, with a citation to the statutory authority for each class, (2) the name and address of the third person, if any, served with the execution, and a statement of the procedure, pursuant to this section, for claiming such an exemption and the time within which such a claim should be made, (3) a statement of the right of consumer judgment debtors to request an installment payment order staying execution pursuant to section 52-356d, and (4) a statement that pursuant to section 52-212, a judgment debtor may, for reasonable cause, move that the judgment be set aside within four months of rendition.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-361b(a) (2017).

LEGISLATIVE:

CASES:
- Cadle Co. v. Fletcher, 324 Conn. 228, 239 (2016). "Section 52–356a(a)(1), which sets forth the procedure for executing against personal property, provides in relevant part that ‘the clerk of the court in which the money judgment was rendered shall issue an execution pursuant to this section against the nonexempt personal property of the judgment debtor other than debts due from a banking institution or earnings ....’ Thus, that statute merely acknowledges that the procedures for executing against personal property do not apply to earnings. Rather, the procedure for garnishing earnings is set forth in § 52–361a. Like § 52–350f, § 52–356a is silent as to wages in the hands of a judgment debtor.”

- Mercadante v. Kvinta, Superior Court, Judicial District of Litchfield at Litchfield, No. LLICV164016048S (Oct. 25, 2016) (2016 WL 7132308). “Based partly on these principles, the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Connecticut, in In re Clifford, 222 B.R. 8 (D.Conn. 1998), has specifically held that two trucks used by a building contractor qualified as ‘tools of the trade’ under § 52–352b(b). The court also reviewed the case law and observed that ‘the general rule is that a motor vehicle is a tool of the trade if it is necessary and used by the debtor to carry on his business. It is not sufficient for the debtor to use a vehicle for transportation to and from work; use of the vehicle must be a part of the debtor's business.’ Id., 12. Finally, the court acknowledged that the statute has a separate exemption for motor vehicles up to $3,500, but concluded that the absence of a monetary limitation on ‘[t]ools’ was within the legislative prerogative.”

- Voll v. Dunn, Superior Court, Judicial District of Waterbury at Waterbury, Docket No. X10UWYCV126018520 (Nov. 10, 2014) (2014 WL 7461644). “Therefore, this court concludes that the defendant's membership interest in the Management LLC and the Fairfield, LLC was ‘property’ as defined in Section 52–350(16) and therefore subject to execution pursuant to Section 52–350f, unless such execution is otherwise prohibited by ‘any other provision of the general statutes or federal law.”

- Utzler v. Braca, Superior Court, Judicial District of Fairfield at Bridgeport, Docket No. CV06 5003257 (Apr. 19, 2010). “The defendant argues that a pro se defendant should not be penalized and should be allowed to have a hearing in connection with the property, despite her late filing and use of the wrong form...

“The texts of General Statutes § 52-361b and § 52-356c are plain and unambiguous. They set forth the procedures to be utilized...for her to gain a hearing on her claim. Patricia Braca did not abide by these statutory conditions and mandates. Her claim for an exemption is hereby dismissed.”

- Anthony Julian Rr Const. v. Mary Ellen Dr. Assoc., 50 Conn. App. 289, 717 A.2d 294 (1998). “The plaintiff states that ‘[i]t must be conceded that the trial court does have supervisory control over the process of an execution.’ We are in complete agreement with the plaintiff's statement of the law. See generally Gainty v. Russell, 40 Conn. 450, 450-51 (1873); Gager v. Watson, 11 Conn. 168, 171 (1836).

"Moreover, we analogize the trial court's action in holding a hearing on the propriety of the issuance of an execution in this case to the common law writ of audita querela."

- Anthony Julian Rr Const. v. Mary Ellen Dr. Assoc., 50 Conn. App. 289, 717 A.2d 294 (1998). "...we hold that a property execution is an improper remedy in this action for foreclosure of a mechanic's lien."

- Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-352b (2017). Exempt property. The following property of any natural person shall be exempt:

  (a) Necessary apparel, bedding, foodstuffs, household furniture and appliances;

  (b) Tools, books, instruments, farm animals and livestock feed, which are necessary to the exemptioner in the course of his or her occupation, profession or farming operation;

  (c) Burial plot for the exemptioner and his or her immediate family;

  (d) Public assistance payments and any wages earned by a public assistance recipient under an incentive earnings or similar program;

  (e) Health and disability insurance payments;

  (f) Health aids necessary to enable the exemptioner to work or to sustain health;

  (g) Workers' compensation, Social Security, veterans and unemployment benefits;

  (h) Court-approved payments for child support;

  (i) Arms and military equipment, uniforms or musical instruments owned by any member of the militia or armed forces of the United States;

  (j) One motor vehicle to the value of three thousand five hundred dollars, provided value shall be determined as the fair market value of the motor vehicle less the amount of all liens and security interests which encumber it;

  (k) Wedding and engagement rings;

  (l) Residential utility deposits for one residence, and one residential security deposit;

  (m) Any assets or interests of an exemptioner in, or payments received by the exemptioner from, a plan or arrangement described in section 52-321a;
(n) Alimony and support, other than child support, but only to the extent that wages are exempt from execution under section 52-361a;

(o) An award under a crime reparations act;

(p) All benefits allowed by any association of persons in this state towards the support of any of its members incapacitated by sickness or infirmity from attending to his usual business;

Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-352d (2017).

(a) As used in this section, "exempt" has the same meaning as provided in section 52-352a, and "farm partnership" means any partnership primarily engaged in the occupation of farming in which at least fifty per cent of the partners are members of the same family.

(b) The farm animals and livestock feed which are reasonably required by a farm partnership in the course of its occupation shall be exempt. All moneys due the farm partnership from any insurance company on any insurance policy issued on such property shall also be exempt to the same extent that the property was exempt.

Table 3: Charging Orders

“Once a judgment creditor obtains a charging order, the trial court is authorized to make any orders and inquiries in support of the charging order.”

Statutes:

- Uniform Limited Partnership Act
  Rights of judgment creditor to charge partnership interest of partner.
  On application to a court of competent jurisdiction by any judgment creditor of a partner, the court may charge the partnership interest of the partner with payment of the unsatisfied amount of the judgment with interest. To the extent so charged, the judgment creditor has only the rights of an assignee of the partnership interest. Nothing in this chapter shall be held to deprive a partner of the benefit of any exemption laws applicable to his partnership interest.

- Limited Liability Companies Act
  Charging order.
  (a) On application by a judgment creditor of a member or transferee, a court may enter a charging order against the transferable interest of the judgment debtor for the unsatisfied amount of the judgment. Subject to subsection (e) of this section, a charging order constitutes a lien on a judgment debtor's transferable interest and requires the limited liability company to pay over to the person to which the charging order was issued any distribution that otherwise would be paid to the judgment debtor. To the extent that the transferable interest of the judgment debtor is so charged, the judgment creditor has only the right to receive any distribution or distributions to which the judgment debtor would otherwise have been entitled in respect of such transferable interest.

  (b) To the extent necessary to effectuate the collection of distributions pursuant to a charging order in effect under subsection (a) of this section, the court may: (1) Appoint a receiver of the distributions subject to the charging order, with the power to make all inquiries the judgment debtor might have made; and (2) make all other orders necessary to give effect to the charging order.

  (c) The member or transferee whose transferable interest is subject to a charging order under subsection (a) of this section may extinguish the charging order by satisfying the judgment and filing a certified copy of the satisfaction with the court that issued the charging order.

  (d) A limited liability company or one or more members whose transferable interests are not subject to the charging order may pay to the judgment creditor the full amount due under the judgment and thereby succeed to the rights of the judgment creditor, including the charging order.
(e) The entry of a charging order is the exclusive remedy by which a person seeking to enforce a judgment against a member or transferee may, in the capacity of judgment creditor, satisfy the judgment from the judgment debtor's transferable interest. With respect to the judgment debtor's transferable interest, attachment, garnishment, foreclosure or other legal or equitable remedies are not available to the judgment creditor, whether the limited liability company has one member or more than one member.

(f) Sections 34-243 to 34-283d, inclusive, do not deprive any member or transferee of the benefit of any exemption laws applicable to the transferable interest of the member or transferee.

- Uniform Partnership Act
  Partner’s transferable interest subject to charging order.
  (a) On application by a judgment creditor of a partner or of a partner's transferee, a court having jurisdiction may charge the transferable interest of the judgment debtor to satisfy the judgment. The court may appoint a receiver of the share of the distributions due or to become due to the judgment debtor in respect of the partnership and make all other orders, directions, accounts and inquiries the judgment debtor might have made or which the circumstances of the case may require.

  (b) A charging order constitutes a lien on the judgment debtor's transferable interest in the partnership. The court may order a foreclosure of the interest subject to the charging order at any time. The purchaser at the foreclosure sale has the rights of a transferee.

  (c) At any time before foreclosure, an interest charged may be redeemed: (1) By the judgment debtor; (2) with property other than partnership property, by one or more of the other partners; or (3) with partnership property, by one or more of the other partners with the consent of all of the partners whose interests are not so charged.

  (d) Sections 34-300 to 34-399, inclusive, do not deprive a partner of a right under exemption laws with respect to the partner's interest in the partnership.

  (e) This section provides the exclusive remedy by which a judgment creditor of a partner or partner's transferee may satisfy a judgment out of the judgment debtor's transferable interest in the partnership.

Recent Charging Order Superior Court Cases:

- Abbett v. OYA, LLC, Superior Court, Judicial District of New Haven at New Haven, No. CV075009253 (June 28, 2016) (2016 WL 4071514). “Accordingly, as the court previously noted, if the LLC's assets and finances have not yet been fully distributed and resolved following dissolution and winding up, then the court may still issue a charging order against a member's interest. See Connecticut Community Bank v. A & J Farm Stand, LLC, Superior Court, judicial district of Stamford–Norwalk, Docket No. CV–12–6013194–S (October 1, 2013, Karazin, J.T.R.).”

that a charging order obtained pursuant to Section 34–171 does not confer ownership or voting rights. Conn. Gen. Stat. § 34–171. Metcoff v. NCT Group, Inc., 2012 WL 6901181 (Conn.Super.) (Taylor, J. December 20, 2012) [55 Conn. L. Rptr.]. The judgment creditor who obtains a charging order does not step into the shoes of the LLC member in the management or affairs of the LLC. See, Rockstone Capital, LLC v. Marketing Horizons, LTD, 2013 WL 4046597 (July 17, 2013, Young, J.) [56 Conn. L. Rptr. 574]. The question posed is whether this is a judgment creditor’s only avenue for pursuing the debtor’s LLC interests.“ (Emphasis added.)

- Mack Film Development, LLC et al. v. Benevolent Partners, L.P. et al., Judicial District of Bridgeport at Bridgeport, No. CV104033543S (Feb. 6 2014). “The court may therefore order further disclosure of financial information or other actions beyond the defendant debtors' rights as limited partners as are necessary to effectuate the charging order, but may not make orders on the partnership to produce information beyond the defendant debtors' right to information if such orders are not related to the plaintiff creditors' specific efforts to obtain payment from the defendant debtors' interest in JHJ Limited Partnership, LP.”

Enforcing Money Judgments - 31
“Instead, these cases dealt with disputes between private parties over priority to funds which had been transferred out of the Treasury and as to which the Government had disclaimed any ownership. They do not in any way disturb the established rule that, unless waived by Congress, sovereign immunity bars subcontractors and other creditors from enforcing liens on Government property or funds to recoup their losses.”

A Guide to Resources in the Law Library

SCOPE:
- Bibliographic resources concerning turnover orders.

DEFINITIONS:
- “Property’ means any real or personal property in which the judgment debtor has an interest which he could assign or transfer, including (A) any present or future right or interest, whether or not vested or liquidated, (B) any debt, whether due or to become due, and (C) any cause of action which could be assigned or transferred.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-350a(16) (2017).

- “(a)If a judgment is unsatisfied, the judgment creditor may apply to the court for an execution and an order in aid of the execution directing the judgment debtor, or any third person, to transfer to the levying officer either or both of the following: (1) Possession of specified personal property that is sought to be levied on; or (2) possession of documentary evidence of title to property of, or a debt owed to, the judgment debtor that is sought to be levied on. (b) The court may issue a turnover order pursuant to this section, after notice and hearing or as provided in subsection (c) of this section, on a showing of need for the order. If the order is to be directed against a third person, such person shall be notified of his right pursuant to section 52-356c to a determination of any interest claimed in the property. (c) The court may issue a turnover order against a judgment debtor, without notice or hearing, upon affidavit by the judgment creditor or another competent affiant stating facts from which the court concludes that there is a reasonable likelihood that the judgment debtor is about to remove the property from the state or is about to fraudulently dispose of the property with intent to hinder, delay or defraud his creditors. The court shall expeditiously hear and determine any motion by the judgment debtor to dissolve such an ex parte order. (d) Unless directed to a person who is before the court, any turnover order shall be personally served and shall contain a notice that failure to comply therewith may subject the person served to being held in contempt of court.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-356b (2017).

- “Where a dispute exists between the judgment debtor or judgment creditor and a third person concerning an interest in personal property sought to be levied on, or where a third person claims that the execution will prejudice his superior interest therein, the judgment creditor or third person may, within twenty days of service of the execution or upon application by the judgment creditor for a turnover order, make a claim for determination of interests pursuant to this section.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-356c(a) (2017).

- Great Country Bank v. Oglin, 168 Conn. App. 783, 789, 148 A.3d 218, 221 (2016). “We observe that Drywall, represented by counsel, appeared before the trial court as a ‘third party’ and that it has brought the present appeal as a ‘third party.’ Drywall, which is not a party to the underlying action, nevertheless properly brings the present appeal because it indisputably was a party to the supplemental proceeding, initiated by the plaintiff under § 52-356c....”

- Padula v. Bianchini, Superior Court, Judicial District of Waterbury at Waterbury, No. CV116009381S (Jan. 14, 2014) (57 Conn. L. Rptr. 482) (2014 WL 567574). “The court will next address the question of whether the defendant's unliquidated interest in the future proceeds of a personal injury action are subject to the provisions of General Statutes

§ 52–356b. It is clear from the language of the statute that a future, unliquidated interest is attachable. The more nuanced question is whether a personal injury cause of action is assignable under Connecticut law and therefore attachable pursuant to the statute.”

- Park Avenue Group Consulting, LLC v. Tartsinis, Superior Court, Judicial District of Hartford at Hartford, No. HDCV136038987S (Dec. 20, 2013) (57 Conn. L. Rptr. 391) (2013 WL 7020545). “Park Avenue claims that its pending lawsuit is a contingent interest and cannot be garnished . . . Here the garnishment sought is of funds due pursuant to a completed contract. A review of the offers of compromise in the lawsuit between Park Avenue and Maffe indicate that the parties agree that some amount is due Park Avenue under the contract but disagree as to the amount. Sums payable pursuant to a contract, either voluntarily made or as ordered by judicial decree, are subject to garnishment under the cases cited above, even though the amount payable under the contract has yet to be determined.”

- Choice Hotels Int’l, Inc. v. Klein, Superior Court, Judicial District of Stamford-Norwalk, No. DFSTCV114020107 (Nov. 7, 2011) (2011 WL 5925081). “The court finds that Choice has made the necessary showing of need. Neither party has provided any authority defining ‘need’ as used in Section 52–356b(b) and there does not seem to be much judicial interpretation available on the subject.”

- Kosloski v. Greenwoods Associates, Superior Court, Judicial District of Litchfield at Litchfield, No. LLI CV 07 5002529S (Dec. 21, 2009). “An application for turnover order is one of the postjudgment remedies available to those who seek to garnish property. ‘In order to demand that a garnishee turnover garnished assets, a plaintiff must obtain either a bank or personal property execution within sixty days of a final judgment, and then properly serve the garnishee with the execution.’ (Internal quotation marks omitted.) Superior Block & Supply Co. v. C & M Masons, Inc., Superior Court, judicial district of New Britain, Docket No. CV 472867 (January 19, 1999, Skolnick, J.) (23 Conn. L. Rptr 666, 667).”

- B.I. Liquidation Corporation v. New Berkshire Industries, Inc., Superior Court, Judicial District of New Britain at New Britain, No. HHB CV06 5000951 (January 16, 2008). “The scire facias procedure described in Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-387 continues to be available alongside the provisions of Chapter 906 to compel a banking institution to comply with an execution. Either set of procedures may be utilized to collect a judgment debt under these circumstances. The court finds that the writ of scire facias is not the exclusive means to do so. . . . But of course the plaintiffs have not sought enforcement via scire facias, but rather under Chapter 906, to which one must turn to discern whether the plaintiffs have run afoul of any deadlines for filing their application for turnover order.”

- Sarasota CCM, Inc. v. Golf Marketing, LLC, 94 Conn. App. 34, 891 A.2d 72 (2006) “We are persuaded that, taken in its entirety, this evidence entitled the plaintiff to the turnover order that it sought without direct proof that Hole-in-Won.com, LLC, is a fictitious entity.”

- Sarasota CCM, Inc. v. Golf Marketing, LLC, 94 Conn. App. 34, 39, 891 A.2d 72 (2006) “The law of turnover orders is entirely statutory... These statutes have not been extensively litigated.”

- PB Real Estate, Inc. v. Dem II Properties, 50 Conn. App. 741, 744, 719 A.2d 73 (1998). “Pursuant to General Statutes § 52-356b (b), the plaintiff applied for a turnover order, claiming that the LLC had not fully complied with the charging order because the 1996 profit and loss statement indicated that a portion of the item designated on the statement as 'legal staff' expense appeared to have been paid to the defendants, contrary to the directive in the charging order that all distributions should be paid to the plaintiff.”

- Fleet Bank Connecticut, N.A. v. Carillo, 240 Conn. 343, 346, 691 A.2d 1068 (1997). “To compel compliance, the plaintiff then filed a motion for a turnover order in the Superior Court.” [Joint Bank Account]

APPLICATION FOR TURNOVER ORDER IN AID OF EXECUTION
(§ 52-356b)

The plaintiff in the above entitled action, Sarasota CCM, Inc. respectfully represents:

1. On March 29, 2004 judgment was entered in favor of the plaintiff and against Kevin Kolenda in the amount of $8,791.73.

2. The plaintiff, Sarasota CCM, Inc. ("Sarasota") applied for a bank execution which bank execution was signed by the clerk of the court on May 6, 2004, copy attached hereto as Exhibit A.

3. Said bank execution was duly served by State Marshal N.E. Nikola ("Marshal") in May 2004 upon JP Morgan Chase & Co. aka JP Morgan Chase Bank ("Chase").

4. Chase returned the bank execution to the Marshal unsatisfied stamped May 28, 2004 with a handwritten note "Tax ID # is Different", return attached hereto as Exhibit B.

5. After that return, the undersigned confirmed with Chase that Kevin Kolenda had a bank account with the bank, using his social security number.

6. Sarasota requested the Marshal to reserve the bank execution upon Chase with a letter dated June 11, 2004 from the undersigned to Chase stating that there was confirmation of a bank account at Chase for Kevin Kolenda. Said letter is attached hereto as Exhibit C.

7. The Marshal reserved the bank execution with the attached letter attached hereto as Exhibit C upon Chase in July 2004.
8. On July 12, 2004 Chase notified the Marshal that the name of the debtor brings up a different tax I.D. number, the debtor is only a signer on the account and the account is a corporate account. Notice attached hereto as Exhibit D.

9. A subpoena duces tecum of Chase's bank records shows that there are two accounts in the name of Hole-In-Won.com LLC, a checking account with account number ___ and a money market account with account number ___.

10. Chase's records show that the taxpayer identification number for these accounts is Kevin Kolenda's social security number.

11. The bank has no verification of the existence of a limited liability company with the name of Hole-In-Won.com LLC.

12. The Office of the Connecticut Secretary of State has no record of a limited liability company with the name of Hole-In-Won LLC. Printout from the Secretary of State's website attached as Exhibit E.

13. Some of the expenses paid from the accounts are personal in nature.

14. Upon information and belief account number ___ and account number ___ are personal accounts of Kevin Kolenda and there is no legal entity known as Hole-In-Won.Com LLC.

WHEREFORE, the plaintiff seeks an turnover order from this Court pursuant to § 52-356b of the General Statutes directing Chase to turn over to the levying officer the sum of money which Chase had an obligation to remove from the bank accounts of the defendant, on the dates of service of the bank execution.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT failure to comply with any turn over order entered by this Court may subject the person being held in contempt of Court.

Section 6: Judgment Liens
A Guide to Resources in the Law Library

SCOPE:

- Bibliographic resources concerning judgment liens.

TREATED ELSEWHERE:

- Mechanics’ Liens in Connecticut
- Foreclosure of Condominium Liens in Connecticut
- Foreclosure of Mortgages in Connecticut

DEFINITIONS:

- "‘Property’ means any real or personal property in which the judgment debtor has an interest which he could assign or transfer, including (A) any present or future right or interest, whether or not vested or liquidated, (B) any debt, whether due or to become due, and (C) any cause of action which could be assigned or transferred." Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-350a(16) (2017).

- "The plaintiff uses the terms ‘attachment’ and ‘judgment lien’ interchangeably. Attachment of real estate is governed by General Statutes § 52-285, while judgment liens are recorded pursuant to General Statutes § 52-380a. While the purpose of both is to secure an interest in real estate for a creditor, the terms are not to be confused.” Bachyrycz v. Gateway Bank, 30 Conn. App. 52, 53, 618 A.2d 1371 (1993). [Footnote 1]

- Notice. "When a lien is placed on any property or when any postjudgment paper, other than a wage execution or property execution levied against property of a natural person, is served on a third person, the judgment creditor shall send a copy of the lien, or of the papers so served, together with a statement as to where the lien was filed or on whom the papers were served, to the judgment debtor at his last-known address by first class mail, postage prepaid.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-351a (2017).

- Judgment lien on personal property. "Except in the case of a consumer judgment, a judgment lien, securing the unpaid amount of any money judgment, including interest and costs, may be placed on any nonexempt personal property in which, by a filing in the office of the Secretary of the State, a security interest could be perfected under title 42a...” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-355a (2017).

- Judgment lien on real property. "A judgment lien, securing the unpaid amount of any money judgment, including interest and costs, may be placed on any real property by recording, in the town clerk's office in the town where the real property lies, a judgment lien certificate, signed by the judgment creditor or his attorney or personal representative, containing . . .” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-380a(a) (2017).

Relation back to attachment. "From the time of the recording of the judgment lien certificate, the money judgment shall be a lien on the judgment debtor's interest in the real property described. If, within four months of judgment, the lien is placed on real property which was previously attached in the action, the lien on that property shall hold from the date of attachment, provided the judgment lien certificate contains a clause referring to and identifying the attachment, substantially in the following form. . .” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-380a(b) (2017).

- Foreclosure of liens. "A judgment lien on real property may be foreclosed or redeemed in the same manner as mortgages on the same property. In the case of a consumer judgment, the complaint shall indicate whether, pursuant to an installment payment order under subsection (b) of section 52-356d, the court has entered a stay of execution and, if such a stay was entered, shall allege any default on an installment payment order which is a precondition to foreclosure. No action to foreclose a judgment lien filed pursuant to this section may be commenced unless an execution may issue pursuant to section 52-356a. The judgment lien shall expire twenty years after the judgment was rendered, except any judgment lien recorded with respect to a small claims action shall expire ten years after the judgment was rendered, unless the party claiming the lien commences an action to foreclose it within that period of time and records a notice of lis pendens in evidence thereof on the land records of the town in which the real property is located.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-380a(c) (2017).

- "In a motion for judgment of foreclosure, the amount of the judgment lien to attach to the property is calculated by taking the fair market value, less the amount of any superior liens and the amount of the Homestead exemption. Unifund CCR Partners v. Scheappi, Superior Court, judicial district of Hartford, Docket No. CV–06–5007258–S (March 20, 2008, Satter, J.T.R.) [45 Conn. L. Rptr. 221]. The positive equity left in the property is what the judgment lien can attach to.” *Profetto v.    o § Sec. 52-380i. Foreclosure of lien when plaintiff holds mortgage.

CASES:

- Cliff’s Auto Body, Inc. v. Grenier, 179 Conn. App. 820, 829–30, 181 A.3d 138, 143 (2018). “In the present case, the judgment lien placed on the property on January 2, 2009, was predicated on the December 30, 2008 judgment in the debt collection action. In the decedent’s appeal, this court determined that the debt collection judgment was not a final judgment because the rate of interest had not been set. The plaintiff failed to open timely the debt collection judgment to obtain an award that set the rate of prejudgment interest. Moreover, for the sake of argument only, even if the plaintiff timely had opened the debt collection judgment and had obtained a judgment that incorporated the rate of interest, in order to obtain a valid judgment lien, it was required to file a new judgment lien on the property. There is no evidence that the plaintiff has filed a judgment lien on the property since January 2, 2009.”

- Profetto v. Lombardi, 164 Conn. App. 658, 661-662, 137 A.3d 922 (2016). “The defendant had claimed that the foreclosure of a judgment lien was permitted for ‘money judgments’ only, and that the court's order in the dissolution judgment was not a ‘money judgment.’ The court determined that the order at issue was not alimony or any other type of ‘family support judgment,’ but, rather, was a judgment for a sum certain with interest and therefore a ‘money judgment.’ Accordingly, the court concluded that the judgment could be enforced by the foreclosure of a judgment lien pursuant to General Statutes § 52-350f, that the court had subject matter jurisdiction over the parties' controversy, and that the trial was to continue as scheduled."

- Profetto v. Lombardi, Superior Court, Judicial District of New Britain at New Britain, No. CV136023235S (March 5, 2015) (2015 WL 1427503). "In a motion for judgment of foreclosure, the amount of the judgment lien to attach to the property is calculated by taking the fair market value, less the amount of any superior liens and the amount of the Homestead exemption. Unifund CCR Partners v. Scheappi, Superior Court, judicial district of Hartford, Docket No. CV–06–5007258–S (March 20, 2008, Satter, J.T.R.) [45 Conn. L. Rptr. 221]. The positive equity left in the property is what the judgment lien can attach to."

- Moran v. Morneau, 140 Conn. App. 219, 227, 57 A.3d 872, 876 (2013). "There is no legal basis for relating either the judgment lien or the prejudgment attachment back to the filing of the notice of constructive trust."

- Warner v. Brochendorff, 136 Conn. App. 24, 43 A.3d 785 (2012). "The plaintiff...brought the present action to foreclose a judgment lien on certain property in Salisbury owned by the defendant.... The trial court, after reducing the amount of the underlying judgment, rendered a judgment of foreclosure by sale (foreclosure judgment) in favor of the plaintiff. The plaintiff appeals from the foreclosure judgment, claiming that the court improperly permitted a collateral attack on the underlying judgment... We agree with the plaintiff and, accordingly, reverse the foreclosure judgment of the trial court."

- Webster Bank, N.A. v. Bendzinski, Superior Court, Judicial District of New Britain at New Britain, Docket No. CV-12-6015007 (Oct. 12, 2012) (54 Conn. L. Rptr. 805). "The court there noted, citing Mac's Car City, Inc. v. DiLoreto, 238 Conn. 172, 179, 679 A.2d 340 (1996), that our appellate courts have construed the judgment lien statute as intended to protect the interests of the judgment creditor, except for the time limitation period for filing a judgment lien [which] . . . is intended to protect judgment debtors. This court concurs with Judge West's conclusion that there is no good reason that failure to comply with the address provision, meant for a creditor's protection, should invalidate a creditor's judgment lien." [Internal quotation marks omitted.]

- Kopylec v. Town of North Branford, 130 Conn. App. 146, 161, 23 A.3d 51 (2011). The adequacy of the notice provided by a lien certificate varies according to the type of lien that the certificate is intended to secure. See PNC Bank, N.A. v. Kelepecz, supra, 289 Conn. at 701, 960 A.2d 563. The recording of certain types of liens is governed by statute, and, consequently, many lien certificates must incorporate certain statutorily specified information. See, e.g., General Statutes § 49–34 (mechanic's liens); General Statutes § 52–380a (judgment liens). The appellate courts of this state have had occasion to examine statutory lien certificates in order to ascertain whether they provide adequate notice to third parties. See, e.g., PNC Bank, N.A. v. Kelepecz, supra, at 701–702, 960 A.2d 563. These cases are inapposite, however, as we have concluded that the lien presently at issue is not a statutory lien.

- Unifund CCR Partners v. Schaeppi, 126 Conn. App. 370, 11 A.3d 723 (2011). “The court, however, concluded that the June 19, 2006 judgment was for no amount, and, that as a matter of law, a judgment for no amount, underlying a judgment lien for another specific amount, cannot be the basis of a foreclosure action. Our plenary review of this claim, as well as the record and briefs, in the light most favorable to the plaintiff, leads us to the same conclusion as the court.”

- Canty v. Otto, Judicial District of Hartford at Hartford, Docket No. HHD-CV-09-5028152-S (Apr. 9, 2010). “Trolley & Bus Employees Credit Union v. Hill, supra, 145 Conn. 336, holds that all the property of a defendant may be attached to satisfy a money judgment. A joint tenant, however, only holds an undivided one-half interest in the jointly-held property. If the creditor of one of the joint tenants executes a judgment lien, the joint tenancy is severed and the creditor becomes a tenant in common with the remaining tenants. Under those circumstances, the creditor then obtains the one-half interest in the resulting estate formerly held by the tortfeasor spouse. Thus, a court may order the attachment of real property held jointly by a tortfeasor and his or her nontorfeasor, but the amount of the attachment is limited to the tortfeasor's one-half undivided interest in that property.”

- PNC Bank, N.A. v. Kelepecz, 289 Conn. 692, 960 A.2d 563 (2008). “Moreover, we are not persuaded by Szondy's reliance on cases in which this court has invalidated mechanic's liens for failure to comply with the applicable statute. Keeping in mind that the purpose of the land records is to give constructive notice to the world of instruments recorded therein; Cowles v. Bacon, 21 Conn. 451, 463 (1852); we conclude that the nature of mechanic's liens is sufficiently distinguishable from the nature of judgment liens so as to make cases involving mechanic's liens inapplicable to the present case. A judgment lien is based on a judicial determination of the amount of the debt owed by the debtor to the creditor and can be independently verified by checking judicial records. A mechanic's lien, on the other hand, is based on a contractor's representation of the amount owed and cannot be independently verified. It follows, therefore, that certain information that may be critical to the enforceability of a mechanic's lien may not be critical to the enforcement of a judgment lien because court records are available as an additional source for necessary information to the judgment lien.”

addition, General Statutes § 52-380a(c) provides that ‘a judgment lien on real property may be foreclosed or redeemed in the same manner as mortgages on the same property.’ ‘In a mortgage foreclosure action, [t]o make out its prima facie case, [the foreclosing party] ha[s] to prove by a preponderance of the evidence that it was the owner of the note and mortgage and that [the mortgagor] ha[s] defaulted on the note.’ (Internal quotation marks omitted.) Franklin Credit Management Corp. v. Nicholas, 73 Conn.App. 830, 838, 812 A.2d 51 (2002), cert. denied, 262 Conn. 937, 815 A.2d 136 (2003). In the present case, the plaintiff failed to meet its burden of demonstrating that the defendant defaulted on the installment payments. Therefore, the plaintiff failed to make out its prima facie case. . . . Furthermore, the special defense of payment is a recognized defense to a foreclosure action.”

- Lucas v. Deutsche Bank National Trust Co., 103 Conn. App. 762, 931 A.2d 378 (2007). “Although we note that the plaintiff filed a timely appeal of the court’s order discharging the judgment lien, he did not file a motion for review of the order terminating the appellate stay. Practice Book § 61-14 provides that the sole remedy for review of a court’s granting of a motion to terminate a stay of execution is to file a motion for review. . . . Without a valid stay in effect, the defendant was able to perfect the court’s order of discharge by recording it on the West Hartford land records. Section 49-51 (b) provides that when a lien is discharged by the court, a certified copy of the discharge recorded on the land records of the town where the certificate of lien was filed fully discharges the lien. The defendant’s July 17, 2006 recording thereby fully discharged the lien pursuant to the plain language of § 49-51 (b). There is, therefore, no longer a lien the validity of which can be challenged on appeal. . . . This renders the plaintiff’s appeal moot.”

- Lienfactors, LLC v. Beebe, Judicial District of Stamford-Norwalk at Stamford, Docket No. FST CV 06 4007993 (March 30, 2007). “General Statutes § 52-380a(c) provides that ‘No action to foreclose a judgment lien filed pursuant to this section [referring to § 52-380a(a)] may be commenced unless an execution may issue pursuant to Section 52-356a.’ Section 52-356a authorizes a clerk of the court to issue an execution against non-exempt personal property on the basis of an unsatisfied money judgment only after any stay of enforcement has expired. As pointed out above, that stay of execution established by Practice Book 361 (now Section 17-28) has not expired.”

- All Seasons Services, Inc. v. Guildner, 89 Conn. App. 781, 878 A.2d 370 (2005). “The defendant's first claim is that the filing of a judgment lien is a proceeding to enforce or to carry out the judgment that violates the automatic appellate stay under Practice Book § 61-11 (a). We disagree.”

- KLC, Inc. v. Trayner, 426 F.3d 172 (2nd Cir. 2005). “At the same time, the Connecticut Superior Courts, instead of holding that judgment liens must first be subtracted from the fair market value of the property, uniformly allow the homestead exemption before ordering foreclosure on a judgment lien. See Konover Constr. Corp. v. Silberstein, 2003 WL 21805576 (Conn.Super.Ct. July 22, 2003), 2003 Conn.Super. LEXIS 2076, (determining defendant's homestead up to a value of $75,000 was exempt from a judgment lien); Martone-Rosato v. Guardiano-Neizwanger, No. CV000438713 (2001), 2001 Conn.Super. LEXIS 1294, at (same); see also Phillips v. Phillips, 2004 WL 503905 (Conn.Super.Ct. Feb.25, 2004), 2004 Conn.Super. LEXIS 456, (implying that property would have been exempt from a judgment lien had the defendant shown that such property was his primary residence).”

- Moasser v. Becker, 78 Conn. App. 305, 828 A.2d 116 (2003). “An examination of our own statutes reveals a legislative intent to achieve the conformity necessary to make the procedures for the recording of state judgment liens applicable to in-state federal judgment liens under 28 U.S.C. § 1962. Pursuant to General Statutes § 52-380a (a), a judgment lien attaches to the real property of a judgment debtor when the judgment creditor records a judgment lien certificate in the office of the clerk of the town in which the real property lies. A lien so recorded 'may be foreclosed or redeemed in the same manner as mortgages on the same property. . . .' General Statutes § 52-380a (c). By virtue of General Statutes § 47-36, enacted in 1953, the legislature has authorized federal court judgments to be recorded in a town's records and indexed and released in the same manner as state court judgments, thus achieving the conformity anticipated by 28 U.S.C. § 1962.”

- Mac’s Car City, Inc. v. Diloreto, 238 Conn. 172, 679 A.2d 340 (1996). “We conclude, therefore, that, in order to effectuate the legislature's intent of 'fix[ing] a reasonable limit upon the duration of attachments'; Hayes v. Weisman, supra, 97 Conn. 391; a judgment lien will relate back to a prejudgment attachment only if the judgment lien is filed within four months of the judgment of the trial court, regardless of the possible pendency of an appeal.”

- Fairfield Plumbing & Heating Supply Corp. v. Kosa, 220 Conn. 643, 600 A.2d 1 (1991). “Accordingly, we hold that, pursuant to 52-380a (c), the provisions of 49-14 (a) concerning deficiency judgments apply to strict foreclosures upon judgment liens.”

- Union Trust Co. v. Heggelund, 219 Conn. 620, 594 A.2d 464 (1991). “The dispositive issue in this case is whether, under General Statutes 52-380a (b), the entire amount of a judgment lien relates back to the date of a prior attachment, or whether the relation back is limited to the amount of the attachment. . . We held in Hubbell that an attachment of real estate creates a lien only for the amount that it directs the officer to attach, although the later judgment for which the attachment furnishes security may be for a larger amount.”

- First New Haven National Bank v. Rowan, 2 Conn. App. 114, 476 A.2d 1079 (1984). “A trial court has discretion, after a review of the equities, to withhold foreclosure. Lettieri v. American Savings Bank, 182 Conn. 1, 12, 437 A.2d 822 (1980); Hamm v. Taylor, 180 Conn. 491, 497, 429 A.2d 946 (1980). Certainly one of the equities in an action for foreclosure of a judgment lien is the fact that the debtor is not in default of the terms ordered as payment of the judgment. If a judgment of foreclosure of a mortgage would not be rendered when the mortgage payments are current, a judgment of foreclosure of a judgment lien should not be rendered without a full hearing on the merits of whether the payments on the judgment are current. See Hughes v. Contemporary Mission, Inc., 180 Conn. 150, 429 A.2d 827 (1980).”

- Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-380a(c) (2017)

  ...The [real property] judgment lien shall expire twenty years after the judgment was rendered, except any judgment lien recorded with respect to a small claims action shall expire ten years after the judgment was rendered, unless the party claiming the lien commences an action to foreclose it within that period of time and records a notice of lis pendens in evidence thereof on the land records of the town in which the real property is located.

- Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-355a(c) (2017)

  (c) Any such [personal property] judgment lien shall be effective, in the same manner and to the same extent as a similar security interest under the provisions of title 42a, for five years from the date of filing, provided the filing shall not give the judgment creditor any right to take possession of the personal property on which the lien has been placed other than by writ of execution or other judicial process. The lien may be extended for additional five-year periods in the same manner as a financing statement may be extended but shall not be extended beyond the period of enforceability of the judgment. Any such property on which a lien has been placed may be executed against and levied on by the judgment creditor in the same manner as other personal property of the judgment debtor. The fact that a judgment creditor has no right under this subsection to take possession of the personal property on which the lien has been placed other than by writ of execution or other judicial process shall not be a defense in a conversion action brought by such judgment creditor for impairment of such judgment lien.

(a) Except as provided in subsection (c) of this section, no personal estate which has been attached may be held to respond to the judgment obtained in the suit, either against the debtor or any other creditor, unless the judgment creditor takes out an execution and has it levied on the personal estate attached, or has demand made on the garnishee in cases of foreign attachment, within sixty days after final judgment, or, if such personal estate is encumbered by any prior attachment, unless the execution is so levied within sixty days after such encumbrance has been removed.

(b) No real estate that has been attached may be held subject to the attachment to respond to the judgment obtained in the suit, either against the debtor or any other creditor, unless the judgment creditor places a judgment lien on the real estate within four months after a final judgment.

(c) In case of a foreign attachment against an executor, administrator or trustee in insolvency, demand shall be made within the times limited in sections 52-389, 52-390 and 52-391.

(d) In determining the periods within which the attaching creditor is so required to take out and levy execution, any time during which the issue or levy of an execution may be prevented or stayed by the pendency of a writ of error, or by an injunction or other legal stay of execution, shall be excluded from the computation.

Section 7: Postjudgment Discovery

A Guide to Resources in the Law Library

SCOPE:
- Bibliographic resources concerning post judgment discovery remedies

DEFINITIONS:
- "A judgment creditor may obtain discovery from the judgment debtor, or from any third person the judgment creditor reasonably believes, in good faith, may have assets of the judgment debtor, or from any financial institution to the extent provided by this section, of any matters relevant to satisfaction of the money judgment. The judgment creditor shall commence any discovery proceeding by serving an initial set of interrogatories, in a prescribed form containing such questions as to the assets and employment of the judgment debtor as may be approved by the judges of the Superior Court or their designee, on the person from whom discovery is sought. Service of an initial set of interrogatories relevant to obtaining satisfaction of a money judgment of a small claims session of the Superior Court may be made by sending such interrogatories by certified mail, return receipt requested, to the person from whom discovery is sought. . . ." Conn. Gen. Stat, § 52-351b(a) (2017).

- "On failure of a person served with interrogatories to return, within the thirty days, a sufficient answer or disclose sufficient assets for execution, or on objection by such person to the interrogatories, the judgment creditor may move the court for such supplemental discovery orders as may be necessary to ensure disclosure including (1) an order for compliance with the interrogatories or (2) an order authorizing additional interrogatories. The judgment creditor may obtain discovery, including the taking of depositions, from any person served with interrogatories in accordance with procedures for discovery in civil actions without further order of the court. The court may order such additional discovery as justice requires provided the order shall contain a notice that failure to comply therewith may subject the person served to being held in contempt of court.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-351b(c) (2017).

- "Any party from whom discovery is sought may seek a protective order pursuant to section 52-400a.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-351b(d) (2017).

- "Any judgment debtor, an execution against whom has been returned unsatisfied in whole or in part or who has failed to respond within thirty days to any postjudgment interrogatories served pursuant to section 52-351b, may be examined on oath, in the court location where the judgment was rendered, concerning his property and means of paying such judgment, before any judge of the Superior Court or before a committee appointed by such judge. Such examination shall be on questions put by the judgment creditor or his attorney, and may be ordered, on the application of the judgment creditor on a form prescribed by the Office of the Chief Court Administrator . . .” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-397 (2017).

LEGISLATIVE:

CASES:

- Rheaume v. Rheaume, 156 Conn. App. 766, 774, 115 A.3d 1116 (2015). “A judgment debtor may seek a protective order from the court in situations where a judgment creditor is engaged in an illegal levy or some other collection practice in violation of state or federal law. See General Statutes § 52–400a (b); Haworth v. Dieffenbach, 133 Conn.App. 773, 784–85, 38 A.3d 1203 (2012). In Haworth, this court reversed the trial court’s denial of a motion for a protective order after concluding that, as a matter of law, the judgment stipulated to by the parties was usurious and therefore, in violation of state law. Haworth v. Dieffenbach, supra, at 784–85, 38 A.3d 1203. The judgment creditor's attempt to collect the debt was therefore an illegal levy and this court concluded that a protective order should have been granted. Id., at 784, 38 A.3d 1203. Thus, a judgment debtor who seeks a protective order is required to establish that the creditor's collection efforts amounted to an illegal levy or other practice in violation of the law.”

Mack Film Development, LLC et al. v. Benevolent Partners, L.P. et al., Superior Court, Judicial District of Bridgeport at Bridgeport, No. CV104033543S (Feb. 6 2014). "The court thus concludes from its review of the relevant statutes and Superior Court decisions addressing this issue that it has wide discretion to either permit examination or restrict it as justice requires. The hearing before this court has provided sufficient basis for the court to identify assets in which the defendant debtor has or has had an interest or rights during the relevant time period and to craft an order tailored to locating those assets which fairly upholds the rights of both the creditor and the defendant debtor.”

Haworth v. Dieffenbach, 133 Conn. App. 773, 784, 38 A.3d 1203 (2012). "Section 52–400a (b) provides for a judgment debtor to come before the court to make a motion for a protective order when the judgment creditor is engaged in an illegal levy, allowing the court to grant the motion and to render the order as justice requires. We have concluded that the judgment to which the parties stipulated in 2000 is usurious as a matter of law and is therefore illegal. Enforcement of the stipulated judgment would also violate state law pursuant to §§ 37–78 and 37–8. The plaintiffs are thus engaged in an illegal levy against the defendant. Because the judgment is usurious as a matter of law, it cannot stand. Therefore, under the facts of this case, justice requires that the court grant a protective order to bar the enforcement of the illegal judgment against the defendant.”

Credit One, LLC v. Martin, Superior Court, Judicial District of New Haven at New Haven, No. NNH CV08 5021699 S (June 14, 2010). “The court has been unable to find any case where the court sanctioned seeking asset disclosure prior to judgment . . . .

“With respect to . . . tax returns . . . the court has reviewed 26 U.S.C. § 6103 and agrees with defendant that said tax returns are privileged absent . . . extraordinary need.” (Emphasis added.)

Briggs v. Briggs, Superior Court, Judicial District of Stamford-Norwalk at Stamford, No. CV 07 026460 S (May 8, 2007). “Additionally, although the plaintiffs, pursuant to General Statutes § 52-351b, did pursue some postjudgment discovery following the first action, the court has held that ‘§ 52-351b creates a proceeding that is separate and distinct from the prior adjudication leading to the judgment debt. . . .’
Presidential Capital Corp. v. Reale, 240 Conn. 623, 633, 692 A.2d 794 (1997). Further, the defendant has provided no authority, nor could the court find any, holding that postjudgment discovery effectively opens a final judgment.”

- Blue Beacon International, Inc. v. Tony’s Long Wharf, Inc. Superior Court, Judicial District of New Haven at New Haven, No. NNH CV 054016156 (2006). "Since the defendant is already subject to the statute that requires that the interrogatories be answered, this court does not find that a second supplemental order to answer the interrogatories is likely to ensure disclosure.

If the plaintiff is actually interested in ensuring compliance with post-judgment discovery, the plaintiff is entitled to make use of Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-397, an effective statutory tool for obtaining post-judgment discovery of the [defendant’s] financial condition…”

- All Seasons Services, Inc. v. Guildner, 89 Conn. App. 781, 878 A.2d 370 (2005). “General Statutes § 52-351b sets forth the procedures for a judgment creditor to obtain discovery from a judgment debtor by serving postjudgment interrogatories on the debtor. Our Supreme Court has determined that ‘[t]he primary purpose of § 52-351b is . . . to assist creditors in obtaining information concerning assets concealed by their judgment debtors.’ (Emphasis added.)
Presidential Capital Corp. v. Reale, 240 Conn. 623, 632, 692 A.2d 794 (1997). Once postjudgment interrogatories have been served on a judgment debtor, General Statutes § 52-397 authorizes the examination of a judgment debtor ‘who has failed to respond within thirty days to any postjudgment interrogatories served pursuant to section 52-351b. . . .’”

- Presidential Capital Corp. v. Reale, 240 Conn. 623, 692 A.2d 794 (1997). “The appellants' argument finally comes down to a question of statutory construction. The inclusion in § 52-351b (d) of an opportunity to request a protective order prior to submitting to discovery does not signal a legislative intent that the denial of such an order constitutes a final judgment.”

Section 8: Expiration and Satisfaction of Judgments

A Guide to Resources in the Law Library

SCOPE: • Bibliographic resources concerning expiration of judgments and satisfaction of judgments

DEFINITIONS: • Execution or action upon judgment for money damages. Motion to revive judgment.

“(a) No execution to enforce a judgment for money damages rendered in any court of this state may be issued after the expiration of twenty years from the date the judgment was entered and no action based upon such a judgment may be instituted after the expiration of twenty-five years from the date the judgment was entered, except that there shall be no time limitation on the issuance of such execution or the institution of such action if the judgment was rendered in an action to recover damages for personal injury caused by sexual assault where the party legally at fault for such injury was convicted of a violation of section 53a-70 or 53a-70a.

(b) No execution to enforce a judgment for money damages rendered in a small claims session may be issued after the expiration of ten years from the date the judgment was entered, and no action based upon any such judgment may be instituted after the expiration of fifteen years from the date the judgment was entered.

(c) With respect to a judgment for money damages rendered in any court of this state, including, but not limited to, a small claims session, a motion to revive such judgment may be filed with the Superior Court prior to the expiration of any applicable period of time to enforce such judgment as set forth in this section. The court may grant the motion to revive the judgment if the court finds that the applicable time period to enforce the judgment under this section has not expired. No order to revive a judgment may extend the time period to enforce a judgment beyond the applicable time period set forth in this section.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-598 (2017). (Emphasis added.)

• Jurisdiction of Superior Court. “(a) For the purposes of postjudgment procedures, the Superior Court shall have jurisdiction over all parties of record in an action until satisfaction of the judgment or, if sooner, until the statute limiting execution has run, except the Superior Court shall have jurisdiction at any time to determine exemption rights and grant appropriate relief.” Conn. Gen. Stat. § 52-350d (2017). (Emphasis added.)

CASES:

- Customers Bank v. CB Associates, Inc., 156 Conn. App. 678, 688-89, 115 A.3d 461 (2015). “Thus, because the stipulated judgment in the present case constituted a contract between the parties, crafted as a means of resolving their dispute in a mutually agreeable manner, the court was not constrained to apply the framework we set forth in Coyle Crete, LLC, which we originally employed to determine whether a judgment rendered after a trial on the merits had been satisfied. Instead, the court properly looked to the terms of the parties' agreement to ascertain whether the defendants had satisfied their obligations thereunder. To adopt the plaintiff's argument, which essentially asserts that, as a matter of law, a judgment can never be satisfied without actual payment of the judgment debt or a payment equivalent thereto, would undermine the rights of parties to resolve their disputes according to mutually agreeable terms, which may or may not encompass alternative or less conventional means of judgment satisfaction.”

- Investment Associates v. Summit Associates, Inc., 309 Conn. 840, 74 A.3d 1192 (2013). “With limited exceptions not applicable to the present case, under § 52-598 (a), a party has twenty years to execute the judgment and twenty-five years to enforce it through a separate action.”

  “On its face and viewed in isolation, § 52-598(c) appears to have no practical effect. Although an order granting a motion under this provision ostensibly ‘revive[s]’ the judgment, the judgment must be presently enforceable in order to be revived and revival has no effect on the time limit to enforce the judgment. Thus, for example, in the present case, under the original 1994 judgment, the plaintiff had until 2014 to execute the judgment and until 2019 to initiate an independent action to enforce the judgment. Under the 2010 revived judgment, the plaintiff is subject to those same limits.”
  [Pages 849-850]

  “In addition, as we previously explained, the sole purpose of § 52–598(c) [motion to revive judgment] is to advance the enforcement of Connecticut judgments in foreign jurisdictions. Foreign jurisdictions constitutionally are bound to give full faith and credit to Connecticut judgments, but only insofar as such judgments are valid.”

- Coyle Crete, LLC v. Nevins, 137 Conn. App. 540, 550-53, 49 A.3d 770 (2012). "Although the filing of a notice of satisfaction of judgment is commonplace; see, e.g., Lestorti v. DeLeo, 298 Conn. 466, 470, 4 A.3d 269 (2010); Powell v. Infinity Ins. Co., 282 Conn. 594, 597, 922 A.2d 1073 (2007); Wells Fargo Bank, NA v. Cornelius, 131 Conn.App. 216, 219, 26 A.3d 700, cert. denied, 302 Conn. 946, 30 A.3d 1 (2011); MedValUSA Health Programs, Inc v. MemberWorks, Inc., 109 Conn.App. 308, 312-13, 951 A.2d 1073 (2008); our courts have not directly addressed the elements of the motion at issue in this appeal, namely, a motion to determine that a money judgment has been satisfied. That is not to say such a motion is improper. Pursuant to General Statutes § 52–350d (a), 'for the purposes of postjudgment procedures, the Superior Court shall have jurisdiction over all parties of record in an action until satisfaction of the judgment....' As used in § 52–350d (a), a postjudgment procedure is 'any procedure commenced after rendition of a money judgment'; General Statutes § 52–350a (15); and a money judgment 'means a judgment, order or decree of the court calling in whole or in part for the payment of a sum of money....' General Statutes § 52–350a (13). It is undisputed that the plaintiff obtained a money judgment against Six Flags in the prior action. The court therefore retained jurisdiction over the motion filed by Six Flags. Accord 50 C.J.S. 226, Judgments § 910 (2009) ('court may, on motion and satisfactory proof that a judgment has been paid and satisfied in whole or in part by the act of the parties thereto, order it discharged and canceled of record, to the extent of the payment or satisfaction'); 47 Am.Jur.2d 382, Judgments § 804 (2006) (courts have inherent power to entertain action to determine whether judgment has been satisfied). Moreover, our rules of practice specifically authorize the filing of a motion to determine that a judgment has been satisfied. Practice Book § 6-5 provides in relevant part that '[w]hen the judgment is satisfied in a civil action, the party recovering the judgment shall file written notice thereof with the clerk, who shall endorse judgment satisfied on the judgment file.... The judicial authority may, upon motion, make a determination that the judgment has been satisfied.' The question pertinent to our inquiry, then, is what issues necessarily must be determined in order for a trial court properly to grant such a motion.

'A satisfaction of judgment is the discharge of an obligation under a judgment by payment of the amount due.' 47 Am. Jur.2d, supra, § 804, at p. 382. 'The satisfaction of a judgment refers to compliance with or fulfillment of the mandate thereof.... There is realistically no substantial difference between the words paid and satisfied in the judgment context.’ (Citation omitted; internal quotation marks omitted.) Mazziotti v. Allstate Ins. Co., 240 Conn. 799, 807, 695 A.2d 1010 (1997). A determination that a judgment has been satisfied ‘operates to extinguish [the judgment] for all purposes…. It is absolutely determinative of the rights of the parties…. Further proceedings may not commence upon a judgment which has been satisfied….’ 50 C.J.S. supra, § 909, at p. 225. ‘Where a judgment creditor has received actual payment of the judgment or any equivalent therefor … but [the judgment creditor] refuses to acknowledge or enter satisfaction, the court having control of the judgment may … order satisfaction to be entered officially.’ (Emphasis added.) Id., § 911, at p. 228.

In light of the foregoing, we conclude that the following issues are prerequisites to the rendering of a determination by the court that a money judgment has been satisfied. First, the judgment creditor must have obtained a valid money judgment against the judgment debtor. Second, the judgment debtor must have paid the amount of that judgment. In so doing, the court must find that the judgment debtor either made actual payment to the judgment creditor or a payment equivalent thereto.”

| • J. Corda Construction, Inc. v. Zaleski Corp., 98 Conn. App. 518, 523-24, 911 A.2d 1051. "Thus, 'a debtor who seeks to challenge the validity of a foreign judgment that has been registered properly in this state may do so only by raising [c]onstitutionally permissible defenses ... that destroy the full faith and credit obligation owed to a foreign judgment.... Such defenses include lack of personal jurisdiction or lack of due process.' (Citation omitted; internal quotation marks omitted.) Business Alliance Capital Corp. v. Fuselier, supra, 88 Conn.App. at 736–37, 871 A.2d 1051. 'A party can therefore defend against the enforcement of a foreign judgment on the ground that the court that rendered the judgment lacked personal jurisdiction, unless the jurisdictional issue was fully litigated before the rendering court or the defending party waived the right to litigate the issue.' Roncari, 181 Conn. 125, 129, 434 A.2d 941 (1980); see also Bank of North America v. Wheeler, 28 Conn. 433, 441 (1859)."
| • Moasser v. Becker, 78 Conn. App. 305, 828 A.2d 116 (2003). "The implication of the defendant's argument, therefore, is that the legislature, in enacting the UEFJA, intended to apply to in-state federal judgment liens a registration requirement that did not apply to Connecticut state court judgment liens. Such an enactment by the legislature, however, would be inconsistent with the legislature's intent, as demonstrated in § 47-36, to achieve the conformity required by 28 U.S.C. § 1962. It would, in fact, destroy that conformity."
Nastro v. D'Onofrio, 76 Conn. App. 814, 822 A.2d 286 (2003). “...we conclude that the phrase in § 52-605 (b) that provides that a foreign judgment, once registered, ‘has the same effect and is subject to the same procedures, defenses and proceedings for reopening, vacating or staying as a judgment of a court of this state’ is not an open sesame for Connecticut courts to reconsider the merits of an out-of-state judgment. To comply with federal constitutional law, the only defenses that a Connecticut court should consider when out-of-state judgment debtors claim that an out-of-state judgment is unenforceable are those that implicate the personal or subject matter jurisdiction of the out-of-state court.”

Other rights of action preserved. The right of a judgment creditor to proceed by an action on the judgment or a motion for summary judgment in lieu of complaint instead of proceeding under sections 52-604 to 52-609, inclusive, remains unimpaired. (Emphasis added.)

B. Liability for Fraud in Contracting Debt; Concealing Property.

  When any person is guilty of fraud in contracting a debt, or conceals, removes or conveys away any part of his property, with intent to prevent it from being taken by legal process, or refuses to pay any debt admitted by him or established by a valid judgment, while having property, not exempt from execution, sufficient to discharge the debt, concealed or withheld by him so that the property cannot be taken by legal process, or refuses to disclose his rights of action, with intent to prevent the rights of action from being taken by foreign attachment or garnishment any creditor aggrieved thereby may institute an action against him, setting forth his debt and the fraudulent act or acts particularly in the complaint.
Reverse Piercing of the Corporate Veil

In a traditional veil piercing case, a litigant requests that a court disregard the existence of a corporate entity so that the litigant can reach the assets of a corporate insider, usually a majority shareholder. In a reverse piercing action, however, the claimant seeks to reach the assets of a corporation or some other business entity...to satisfy claims or a judgment obtained against a corporate insider. Commissioner of Environmental Protection v. State Five Industrial Park, Inc., 304 Conn. 128, 37 A.3d 724 (2012). (Internal quotation marks omitted.)

Commissioner of Environmental Protection v. State Five Industrial Park, Inc., 304 Conn. 128, 140, 37 A.3d 724 (2012). “Although some courts have adopted reverse veil piercing with little distinction as a logical corollary of traditional veil piercing, because the two share the same equitable goals, others wisely have recognized important differences between them and have either limited, or disallowed entirely, reverse veil piercing. See G.S. Crespi, ‘The Reverse Pierce Doctrine: Applying Appropriate Standards,’ 16 J. Corp. L. 33, 37 (1990) (‘reverse pierce claims implicate different policies and require a different analytical framework from the more routine corporate creditor veil-piercing attempts’). Three specific concerns have been identified. ‘First, reverse piercing bypasses normal judgment-collection procedures, whereby judgment creditors [of an individual judgment debtor] attach the judgment debtor’s shares in the corporation and not the corporation’s assets.’ (Internal quotation marks omitted.) Postal Instant Press, Inc. v. Kaswa Corp., supra, 162 Cal. App. 4th 1520. When corporate assets are attached directly for the benefit of the creditors of an individual, it prejudices rightful creditors of the corporation, who relied on the entity's separate corporate existence when extending it credit and 'underst[ood] their loans to be secured — expressly or otherwise — by corporate assets.' Floyd v. Internal Revenue Service, 151 F.3d 1295, 1299 (10th Cir. 1998).

Second, if a ‘corporation has other non-culpable shareholders, they [too] obviously will be prejudiced if the corporation’s assets can be attached directly. In contrast, in ordinary piercing cases, only the assets of the particular shareholder [or other insider] who is determined to be the corporation's alter ego are subject to the attachment.’ (Internal quotation marks omitted.) Postal Instant Press, Inc. v. Kaswa Corp., supra, 162 Cal. App. 4th 1520. Thus, ‘[a] key factor in any outsider reverse piercing controversy is the presence of corporate shareholders other than the insider against whom the outsider is asserting the primary claim. If other shareholders do exist, allowance of a reverse pierce would prejudice those shareholders by allowing the outsider to attach assets in which they have an interest.’ G.S. Crespi, supra, 16 J. Corp. L. 65.

Finally, because corporate veil piercing is an equitable remedy, it should be granted only in the absence of adequate remedies at law. See Naples v. Keystone Building & Development Corp., supra, 295 Conn. 233; see also Floyd v. Internal Revenue Service, supra, 151 F.3d 1300; 1 W. Fletcher, Cyclopedia of the Law of Private Corporations (1999) § 41.25, p. 604; annot., 2 A.L.R.6th, supra, § 3, p. 195.”
Table 10: Abusive, Harassing . . . Debt Collection Practices

(a) A creditor, as defined in section 36a-645, who uses any abusive, harassing, fraudulent, deceptive or misleading representation, device or practice with respect to any person to collect or attempt to collect a debt in violation of section 36a-646, section 36a-805 or the regulations adopted pursuant to section 36a-647 or 36a-809 shall be liable to such person in an amount equal to the sum of: (1) Any actual damages sustained by such person, (2) if such person is an individual, such additional damages as the court may award, not to exceed one thousand dollars, and (3) in the case of any successful action to enforce liability under the provisions of this subsection, the costs of the action and, in the discretion of the court, a reasonable attorney’s fee.

(b) In determining the amount of liability in an action brought pursuant to subsection (a) of this section, the trier of fact shall consider, among other relevant factors, the frequency and persistence of noncompliance by the creditor, the nature of such noncompliance and the extent to which such noncompliance was intentional.

(c) A creditor may not be held liable in an action brought under this section if the creditor shows by a preponderance of the evidence that the violation was not intentional and resulted from a bona fide error, notwithstanding the maintenance of procedures reasonably adopted by the creditor to avoid any such error.

(d) An action to enforce liability under this section may be brought in any court of competent jurisdiction not later than one year after the date on which the violation occurs.
